

Hierarchy of Human Roles.

Choices abound as to how each person can design his or her life. Our unchecked desires lead us down well-worn paths towards pain and disillusionment. The sad stories are everywhere. We are told to balance home, work, church and self. But that just leads to over commitment. Fortunately the ageless wisdom in the Bible sets clear priorities. Following these is the secret to lasting fullness.

We play a bit of each of these roles, but the top ones tend to distract us. They may give the most immediate rewards; but when they take priority over the more foundational roles, they ultimately lead to discontentment and regret. If we can define who we are by this hierarchy and make our decisions by these priorities, we will find satisfaction and joy in the midst of a life that is an adventure of growth. We will find an "abundant life" (John 10:10).

Producing for the sake of fulfilling the lower three foundational levels is really part of those levels. Producing for the sake of self-fulfillment or basic drive or any other reason is what this level is about.
