

Scarlet Clerodendron

Clerodendron speciosissimum

Clerodendrum speciosissimum may look tropical, but it reliably returns to our garden year after year. The slowly suckering plant emerges with upright woody stems, and large 1' wide velvety green leaves. The plant will be topped spring through fall with terminal clusters of brilliant, scarlet-red flowers. Expect to see hummingbirds around this beauty. Will grow in dappled shade to partial sun.