

Crinum jagus 'Rattrayii'

Crinum jagus 'Rattrayii'

This crinum has the most attractive foliage of all the crinums! Heavy clumps of its erect dark green foliage are topped with stalks of large ballooning buds and vanilla scented, bright white funnel-shaped flowers in spring – often repeating flowering through the summer. This crinum is easy to grow and performs well with little attention. Clumps can be dug and divided in late fall. Because of the stiff, upright foliage this crinum makes a nice presence in the garden even without flowers, unlike some crinums that are, well, ugly when not in bloom. Rare in the trade!
