Hibiscus mutabilis

An old-fashioned perennial hibiscus that can be shrubby or tree like. Flowers are double and 4”-6” in diameter – they open white or pink and darken as the day goes on – both colors appearing on the same plant. It can reach 12’+ when it doesn’t freeze. If it does freeze back, it will come back from the ground and grow into a 6’-8’ shrub. Grows in full sun or partial shade – prefers well drained soil, but is surprisingly adaptable to less than ideal conditions.
