

Narrow-leaf Spider Lily

Hymenocallis acutifolia

Narrow-leaf Spider Lily - narrow foliage, blooms summer through fall.

Spider Lilies make a statement in the landscape even when not in bloom. They have glossy, rich green foliage that has a dramatic presence when planted in masses. Spider Lilies flowers are often described as looking more daffodil-like than lily-like. The flower form is characterized by a white central “cup” that is marked by six long, delicate spider-like petals. They make fabulous borders and do well in containers. Prefers moist soils and will do well at the edge of water features.
