

Walker's Low Catmint

Nepeta x faassenii 'Walker's Low'

Named perennial plant of the year in 2007, 'Walker's Low' grows into a lovely grayish green mound of aromatic foliage topped by lavender-blue flowers. Although its name implies that it's dwarf, it is named for a garden rather than its habit. Grows 12"h x 36"w. Once established, it is drought resistant and salt-tolerant. Deer and rabbit resistant as well. Bees and butterflies adore it. Sun to partial sun. Can be pruned regularly to keep it looking full and lush. Evergreen.
