

Pigeonberry

Rivina humilis

Pigeonberry is one of our favorite native ground covers. It can be covered in pink and white flowers and red berries, all at the same time. That happens about 7 months out of the year in Houston. It likes to be tucked up under a larger shrub, or a good shade tree. Pigeonberry likes moisture, so plan on occasional watering for best results. Birds love the red fruits! Evergreen in warm climates, dormant in cold winters. Foliage turn burgundy in the winter. Partial sun to shade.
