

Augusta Duelberg White Salvia

Salvia farinacea 'Augusta Duelberg'

This Greg Grant introduction produces an abundance of white spikes of tubular flowers from late spring through fall. A tough Texas native that's drought tolerant, reliable, perennial and attracts butterflies as well as other pollinators. Bees love it! Found growing in a cemetery along with Henry Duelberg 'mealy cup' sage. Full to part sun. Deer resistant. Grows 3'x3', but takes well to pruning. Nice cut flower.
