HISTORICAL.

The town of Danbury was settled in 1684, and the original name applied to it by the Indians was "Pahquioque." Conspicuous among the names of its first settlers are Thomas Taylor, Francis Bushnell, John Hoyt, James Benedict, James Beebee, and Judah Gregory; these, with the exception of Beebee, all came from the neighboring town of Stratford. Like many other towns in the State, Danbury came in for its share of troubles during the war of the Revolution. On the 26th of April, 1777, the British forces entered the town, set fire to and destroyed nineteen buildings, a church, twenty-two stores and barns, with all their contents. The force of the town was then under command of Col. Cook, who, with a comparatively small body of men, was una ble either to repel the invasion, or in any way check the ravages of the invader, so that the streets necessarily flowed with blood, and property of all kinds was at the mercy of the foe. But the war of the Revolution over, and peace restored, the good citizens of the town set about to build up the waste places, and to mark out, with the hand of progress, avenues and channels for enterprise and trade.

As early as the year 1780, one Zadoc Benedict, with the aid of one journeyman and two apprentices, commenced the manufacture of hats, near the present location of the depot on Main street, the number of hats turned off being about three per day. This is considered, upon reliable authority to be the starting point of the great hatting interest in this town. Some eight or ten years later, the firm of Burr & White started the first genuine "hat factory," which in those days was considered a "big thing," as they employed thirty hands, and turned off hats at the rate of fifteen dozen per week, whereas now 300 dozen daily are turned out at the larger manufactories. The modes of manufacture were entirely different from the present methods employed, many improvements having been made, and inventions brought out for perfection in the manufacture of these goods. About the year 1830 the silk hat was invented, and (as is not generally known) is of "celestial" origin, having been first made by a native of China. In 1835 Mr. Alvin Hurd started a shop employing five men, and thus introduced into Danbury the art of making silk hats, which from the year 1840 to 1850 was largely entered into by Tweedy & White, W. Montgomery, N. H. Wildman and others, but the demand of late years being largely in favor of soft hats, nothing whatever is now done in the line of silk hats. There are at the present time eleven large hat manufactories in successful operation, three wool and eight fur, whose united capital is over $1,500,000. The busiest seasons are from January to May in manufacturing for the spring trade, and from July to November for the fall trade. Many additional items of interest might be given in regard to this great source of income to Danbury, but lack of space compels us to pass them over. The retail business of the town is carried on for the most part on Main street, which is a broad fine avenue, one mile and a quarter in length, finely shaded in summer, and where may be seen the residences of many of its wealthiest citizens. Some of these are remarkable, not so much for their huge proportions as for their adaptation to convenience and comfort. On the west of the street is an eminence called Deer Hill, which commands a fine view of the town and surrounding country. Distant some two miles from the centre is Lake Kenosia, whose picturesque scenery is much enjoyed during the summer season by excursionists and pic-nic parties—fine facilities are also afforded for boating and bathing and a small hotel supplies the wants of the inner man.

Not a little attention has been paid to religious interests. There are here two Congregational, one Episcopal, one Baptist, The Church of Christ, the Sandemanian, one Methodist, one Universalist, and one Roman Catholic. St. Peter's (R. C.) church is the handsomest structure, being built of gray-stone. It was dedicated on the 12th of December, 1875. Its seating capacity is 1200. As to education, here as in all the towns of this good commonwealth, the people have manifested the great importance not only of thorough education in the training of its youth but also in erecting buildings ample in their proportions, and attractive in their surroundings. There is but one public school in the State larger than the "Centre School" of Danbury. Some idea may be formed of its magnitude when we state there are at present a corps of twenty-two teachers aside from the Superintendent, and the average attendance is about 1,300; the school itself being divided into four stages, Primary, Intermediate, Grammar and the High. The South Centre District has also convenient school-grounds with two large buildings. A principal and seven assistants teach the "young idea."

Although not yet a city, the people of this town appreciate the power of the Press, and sustain three papers, the Danbury News, which under the management of Bailey & Donovan, is well conducted, and ably edited, and would do credit to many towns of larger growth. The Globe and the Democrat are also well-conducted journals. Mr. Taylor, with an eye to the gratification of amusement seekers has erected a handsome structure on the corner of Main and West streets, in the second story of which is the Opera House. The stage-room is ample, and the audience-room spacious, being capable of comfortably seating 900 persons, and Mr. T. is to be congratulated on his success in the enterprise. To the indefatigable exertions of John W. Bacon, Esq., the citizens of Danbury are indebted for a good supply of pure and healthful water. The reservoir of the Danbury Water Works covers an area of about ten acres, and so great is the head of water, that streams from five fire hydrants have been played simultaneously, attaining a height of upwards of one hundred feet. The fire hydrants are so located that nearly every building within the limits of the Borough can be reached in case of fire; and steam boilers can be supplied directly from the mains without the intervention of pumps. It is peculiarly adapted to drinking and culinary purposes, being pure and soft. On the night of January 31st, 1869, the reservoirs gave way, and the huge blocks of ice, weighing many tons, came crashing down through the center of the town, following the course of Still river; dwellings, trees, bridges, and all other obstacles were swept away like straws, and to the devastation and wreck were added the gloom and sorrow of the whole town for the eleven lives that were lost. The dam was immediately rebuilt, and the reservoirs enlarged.

The traveler, hungry, worn and weary, need not go without a comfortable resting-place in Danbury; for here is found two hotels, the Wooster House, and Turner House, either one of which will furnish you with a good meal and a comfortable bed, for the requisite amount of cash, which will be gratefully received by the smiling landlords of each, with the request to "call again."

Danbury has two railroads, the Danbury & Norwalk, which was first chartered in 1835, under the name of the Fairfield County Railroad Company. The road not being built in the time called for by the terms of the charter, a new charter was granted under its present name, and the work of building was commenced in 1850. In 1852 the road was completed and in running order. It affords the nearest communication with New York, and has added materially to the growth of the town. The New York, Housatonic & Northern Railroad was commenced and surveyed to White Plains, N. Y. It was completed only from Brookfield Junction to Danbury in 1868. It is now leased by the Housatonic Railroad Co., and run in connection with their road from Bridgeport to Pittsfield, Mass.

While we have given a brief synopsis of the past, taken a hasty glance at the present, and reiterated some facts concerning the living, we must not forget those who have passed to the other shore. A drive at the hour of sunset, brought the writer within the sacred inclosure of the Wooster Cemetery. On an eminence near the entrance, we find a beautiful monument, sacred to the memory of the gallant Wooster, of Revolutionary fame. This monument was erected in 1854, partly from an appropriation by the State, by contributions from various Masonic Lodges, and by citizens of Danbury. The material is of free stone, and its height about forty feet. On one side of the shaft is the coat of arms of the State, while on the other are recounted his deeds of valor in "the days which tried men's souls," and on the third side the announcement of the introduction of Free Masonry in this State, General Wooster having organized the first Lodge in Connecticut—Hiram Lodge, No 1, of New Haven. As we stood beside this noble work of art, and recounted the noble deeds of valor and of heroism, and the works of pure benevolence and philanthropy which characterized his life, we could not but wish that there were more among the living to-day whose virtues could be as truthfully portrayed upon their monuments when they are gone, as are those of the noble Wooster. Seldom has it been our pleasure to visit a rural cemetery so tastefully arranged. Its serpentine walks, its grassy mounds, its artificial lake, and trees of evergreen, give to it that air of calm repose so appropriate to the silent "city of the dead." The whole enclosure embraces about 100 acres; and only twenty years ago this spot, now so pleasant to the eye, was one barren waste; but through the public spirit and enterprise of Geo. W. Ives, Esq., since deceased, and Edgar S. Tweedy, Esq., this comparative wilderness has been transformed into a beautiful and attractive cemetery, comparing favorably with those of greater pretensions in our larger cities. Many fine monuments and tombstones here and there mark the resting places of prominent and influential citizens, who, in their day have lent a helping hand to every good word and work, and whose names will never be forgotten.

We shall be obliged, in our limited space, to pass over many matters of interest to which we might allude. We will only add, that present indications point to a steady increase of growth from year to year. But one thing is needed to give a fresh impetus, which is, the introduction of new manufacturing interests. It is a noticeable fact that those towns which are dependent upon one branch of industry are generally retarded in their growth. And we incline to the opinion, if capitalists should invest in other branches of manufacture in addition to hatting, it would be the means of greater prosperity, and add materially to the population and wealth of Danbury.

Danbury has now in course of erection one of the handsomest public library buildings in the State. It was incorporated under the title of the Public Library of Danbury, June 5th, 1869. It was for the purpose of receiving and taking care of the trust fund given by William Augustus White, who died in Brooklyn, Feb. 16th, 1868. He left by will $10,000 in trust for the establishment of a public library, authorizing also his executors to appoint trustees to execute the trust. Subsequently Alexander M. White and his brother Granville, deeded the old White Homestead back as far as to where the old house now stands for the same use, and in 1876 they made a gift of about $25,000 for the erection of the present building, which was commenced in the summer of 1877, and it is expected to be ready for use in June, 1878. The architect is Mr. Lorenzo Wheeler, of Newark, N. J., formerly of Danbury. The mason is Mr. John H. Benedict, and the carpenter Mr. W. W. Sunderland, both of Danbury. The building committee is composed of Joseph M. Ives, Charles H. Merritt, and Edmund Tweedy.

J. A. BEAL,

NO. 5, OPERA HOUSE, DANBURY, CONN.

CHICKERING PIANOS.

DECKER PIANOS.

Pianos and Organs Tuned and Repaired.

J. H. IVES & CO.,

MANUFACTURE

W. C. BARKER'S

Patent Elastic Expansion

Rubber Bucket.

Is universally acknowledged to be

The Best Pump in the World for the following reasons :

They work easy; they do not get out of order; they ventilate the well and give action to the water, thereby removing damps and keeping the water pure and fresh

CAUTION.—The great popularity of this Pump has induced several irresponsible parties to make gross and worthless imitations, infringing on this patent and misleading the public. In buying be sure and observe the date of the patent, that the first is June 20th, 1871, and made by

HISTORICAL.

Bethel as a town, has had a short and uneventful history. Originally a portion of the town of Danbury, in whose affairs it exercised a not unimportant part, it was set off in 1855 as a separate township. As early as 1759, the settlement was deemed important enough to be recognized as a separate ecclesiastical society. Before becoming a town, however, in 1857, a borough organization was perfected which is still continued.

The main business of the town is that of hatting. There are at the present time twelve factories in operation with capacities of from twenty five to one hundred and twenty five dozen per day. The business of comb making was at one time the leading industry, but has of late years become one of the "lost arts," recent efforts at a revival of the business having proved unsuccessful. As a consequence of the restriction of manufactures to one branch, the town is not really in as prosperous a condition as though the capital invested covered a greater range, but it is to be hoped that a movement now on foot to introduce water-works will lead to the establishment of new industries and a corresponding building up of the town. The educational facilities of the place are excellent two schools being maintained near the centre, and several smaller ones in the outer districts.

If for no other reason, Bethel will always remain famous as the birth-place and home until manhood, of America's most widely known citizen, P. T. Barnum, Esq. It has also furnished to the world many other eminent men, both in business and politics, the best known among the latter being the late Senator O. S. Ferry, whose career while in the service of his country, both in the army and in Congress, is an example of the highest patriotism.

TURNER HOUSE,

DANBURY, CONN.

DOUGLAS FAIRCHILD, - - PROP'R.

CORNER MAIN AND TURNER STS.

THE location of this hotel is admirable, being in the handsomest part of venerable Main Street, opposite the Park. Although away from the noise and bustle of the business centre, it is yet so near as to be within five minutes walk of the post-office, banks, and railway stations.

It is a large, handsome brick building, finely furnished, and conducted with a view to giving its guests all the comforts possible in

A MODEL FAMILY HOTEL,

as the TURNER HOUSE has now become.

The well-supplied bar is designed mainly for the accommodation of the guests of the hotel, and is not a resort for the promiscuous crowd.

FOR THE ACCOMMODATION OF FAMILIES THERE IS NO BETTER HOTEL IN THE COUNTRY.
