To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing to express my support for the Loads of Love Mobile Laundry Initiative, being brought to Tucson by Hard Hitters for the Kingdom, Inc., a non-profit organization.

For those folks unfortunate enough to be living on the street or in their car, having consistent, dignified, and accessible mobile laundry services would be of great value. This proposed mobile laundry program will provide this to cooling centers, drop-in centers, and partner agencies serving individuals and families facing hardship across Ward 3 and the greater Tucson area.

I strongly support this initiative and its compassionate, practical approach to meeting basic human needs. It is a meaningful extension of our community care system, meeting people where they are with respect, dignity, and consistency.

It will provide much needed access to clean clothing and basic hygiene support. In doing so, it will reduce barriers that many individuals face when seeking housing, employment, healthcare, and other essential services.

Loads of Love will do more than just providing laundry services. It will build trust, strengthen community connection, and create opportunities to engage individuals with supportive resources.

In Ward 3 we see many people struggling every day to build a new life after circumstances or poor choices have led them to be unsheltered. Loads of Laundry is a valuable investment in dignity, public health, and community well-being, and we will be value-added to the many other programs providing shelter and services to those who desperately need help.

Respectfully,

Kevin Dahl
