LEXI MILES

ROMANCE AUTHOR

Lexi Miles was born in northern California and is growing a cult following for both her poetry and romance novels. Lexi lived in various places in California and Nevada (Las Vegas and Reno). Tropical warm spots and out of the way ranches are Lexi's favorite escapes. She has one sister, Cat. Presently she resides in California and is a proud pup mom of two mischievous Yorkies. They are handfuls and most definitely light up her life! Lexi delights in having a good Netflix binge. Lexi enjoys music (all genres), baseball, bubble baths, cooking, and long walks on the treadmill (AKA working out).

Cultivation of Lexi's writing is attributed to a lot of reading, variety of writing contests, her college studies in communication, and her association and mentoring from professors, published authors, and editors. In addition, she credits the tool of LIFE EXPERIENCES in general as one of the key factors in the development of her writing. Lexi personally edited and consulted for various published novels as well.

Lexi embraces who she is and is a huge fan of positivity; accordingly, she loves to giggle and make others smile as often as she can. Lexi, has a deep interest in personal growth and is always open to learning new things that challenge her. On her off-time, she adores the chance to binge watch/read a good romance, mystery, suspense, or life stories in general. Whenever possible, Lexi tries to help others achieve their goals in life. Lexi strongly believes that life is an incredible gift and is to be enjoyed!

Lexi fell in LOVE with writing—head over heels in love—from the time that she could first hold a pen and she just never stopped falling. Lexi loves writing romance; she believes there is something extraordinary about the magic of love shared by a couple. Lexi is thrilled to pen that beauty of love on paper!

LEXI MILES

(SHORT BIO)

Lexi Miles is an award-winning romance author. She currently resides in California. She has one sister named Chloe (also an author) and is a proud pup mom to a mischievous Yorkie, Harley. Tropical warm spots and out of the way ranches are Lexi's favorite escapes. Lexi, a huge fan of positivity, loves to giggle, and is delighted when she can help someone else smile while reading her books. Whenever possible, Lexi loves a good in-home TV/movie binge. She also enjoys music (all genres), baseball, bubble baths, cooking, and long walks on the treadmill (aka working out). As far as writing, she fell in love with it early on in life, and now writes romances about strong female characters who discover who they are and the unique strength being in love gives someone when facing life's many challenges. Lexi is growing a cult following for both her poetry and romance novels (sweet to alarmingly spicy) and believes that love—all forms—is the most precious gift that we are given in life. She is thrilled to pen romance, and all that comes with it on paper! Lexi published her debut novel, Custom Fit, in December 2015 and now has multiple published titles. AUTHOR Q&A

What is your favorite part about writing romance novels?

I love everything about writing it; it is such a layered genre. I love creating the characters, weaving in a bit of life, the pulse racing hotness, and the sweet love. I love that love conquers all despite whatever challenges life throws at all of us!

How did you start writing? When did you know it was your calling?

When I was in elementary school, the writing bug bit me when I did a writing project. The assignment was to create our own unique stories in the vein of the different genres that we were studying: fairytales, tall tales, magic, and the others. I had always been creative—really creative—imagination running wild as I played with my, My Little Ponies, Barbies, and stuffed bears. Then something happened. It occurred to me that I could do more than create and act out my doll dramas. I could also write them down to enjoy the fun over and over (for myself) and on multiple occasions with others; I was hooked! And to this day, I have continued to share them—and have not looked back.

What is one thing that you want us to know about you, Lexi?

I have the gift to gab. I am blunt and very much about getting to the point. I am a giggler. I cry at movies and enjoy binge-watching romcom type series. I have a bunch more to share, but those are a few that came to mind right now.

Where do you draw inspiration?

I draw it from anything and everything. That is the simple answer. That ranges from songs, my interests, dreams, and things I've been watching. It comes from any subject that speaks to me, calls to me, vibrates with me. I have to write it!

What is one thing that makes your romance novels different from other romances?

I write the traditional romance yet with lots and lots of twists. Let me explain. I love sweet romances that grip your heart and possess that brilliant electricity of everything a traditional good contemporary romance should: they meet, hot sexual tension, they get sexy, overcome a conflict, and then rewarding happy ending. But I write that red-hot sexy romance in fresh ways so that it is not predictable and it's riveting! I write a range of four flavors: sweet, fire, alarm (erotic), and magic! It's the kind that makes you want to turn the page and read it again and again!

What will someone walk away with having read the novels?

Love is worth it. All of the stories coming soon or out show challenges that couples face and how they evolve (as individuals and as a couple). I think that love makes us the best versions of ourselves. You know, the most courageous people that we can be because we know that we are loved and accepted deeply. In my opinion, romantic love centers us and makes everything about life more vibrant and beautiful. Love, in many ways, is like that spice of a secret recipe in cooking that makes life taste better!

How do you find time to get everything done?

Writing lists and sticking to those lists are my best friend. I plan out my time and try to stick closely to it. That way, I stay on track!

What are your characters like?

I am all about having strong, mature, and realistic female leads. I am not about the "little mommies" (girls acting like they need to mother their guys) or the stubborn cliché types. I think that women can be spunky, strong, independent, sexy, and soft all at the same time. I love writing that balance. And on the flip side, I have sexy fire-hot alpha males that aren't the stereotypical guy. My fellows are intelligent gentlemen, vulnerable yet extremely confident, don't let my female leads get away with anything, and are sweetly protective. Each of my leads, male or female, go after what they want, and often that is each other!

What should someone expect when reading any of your titles?

Readers can expect a HEA (happily ever after) as well as a good time!

What is your favorite workspace to write?

I love to sit in my chair at my desk, legs up and crossed beneath me as I write. If not that, I tend to enjoy writing while seated on the floor with my pup in my lap.

One quick fact about you?

I adore the beach! I am positive that I was a mermaid in another life! (Giggles)

What are a few unique aspects of your blog?

A few things come to mind straightaway: Character Interviews that introduce you to characters in the books (mine and other authors) via a quick interview with the actual characters, Positive Power Quotes with brief thoughts on them, Music Blogs (songs I listen to as I write), Lifestyle Blogs, Book Chats, and rounding out the list Life/Writer Tips. All have a different voice and are deliciously fun to share!

You co-host a weekly social media event #FoodParty every Tuesday. Would you please tell us about it?

Well, it all started from a cookbook entitled #FoodParty that I co-authored with romance author Chloe Quinn (also my sister). From there, the hashtag game evolved into a weekly chat about food where participants share a line from a work of theirs (WIP aka Work In Progress or Published Work) as it relates to the weekly theme. Anyone can join us, and we always have a lot of fun with it!

One thing that you like doing as an author?

I'm into doing Bookboards on Pinterest, where I share/pin snapshots of the ideas of what is in my head as I am writing the books. It's wildly fun to do!

When you write, do you plan out everything or let the story lead?

A little bit of both. I write an outline, but I let it flow naturally.

What do you do when you are not writing?

When I am not writing/editing, I love to draw and create a comic strip featurette, lighthearted similar to that of the Garfield vein, based on Hayley and Nadia (twin sisters). It is a comical view of life that takes place where life does: gym, school, home, and often their favorite burger place. It is full of laughs and is a great way to relax. Speaking of giggling, I love to do that! I also enjoy it whenever I get a chance to sing, meditate, journal, workout, binge Netflix, listen to music, work on a DIY project, take time out to spoil myself with beauty day, lounge in a bubble bath, or spend time with those that I love. Fun fact, quality time is my love language. So, quality time with my mischief-maker, my Yorkie, Harley, is one of my most favorite things!

What is an excellent read to you?

How Good Can It Get by Alan Cohen has got to be my go-to as far as books to read. I read a lot, but I circle back to that one because I never tire of it. The story is one of those that expand the way you think. It is positive, inspires me, and always gets me smiling. I also enjoy reading romances with various strong plots and feisty characters by Chloe Quinn (Exposed Practices and Savory Aphrodisiac).

Something unique about your writing process?

Once I have finished, I have this ritual where I step away from it completely. After a moment, I return to it to read with fresh eyes as if I am a reader. I do the whole shebang where I talk aloud to it, blush or slap my head at the awkward moments, get mad at the interfering characters, fall in love with their story, drink cool water at the hot parts, and all that good stuff. To read it as my readers do is one of the best parts of writing it to me!

Can you explain the 4 Flavors of Lexi and what it has to do with the types of romances you write?

The 4 Flavors of Lexi are the various heat levels of my novels that range from Sweet (romance for TV), Fire (Sensual and Steamy), Alarm (Erotic), and Magic (Sexy with a twist of Magic). The idea here is that I have the intensity level to quench any craving. I also have 2 Secret Flavors that are not on the standard menu. Those are Shorts (Short Story Collections) and Kindle-Vellas (Weekly Episodes on Amazon of Romance Reads).

Do you ever use the places that you have traveled to as settings for your stories?

Yes, all the time. It could be something as simple as going to the dog park or extravagant as an island getaway. All of it makes the books.

Who is someone that inspires you?

I am inspired not by one person alone but by anyone that goes after what they truly want with all that they have. I am inspired by those who love wholeheartedly and are kind to others. I am inspired by those who don't see something as limiting but limitless. Those are the people that inspire me!

Best advice for writers new or long-time?

Write the story that you want to read and respect the trust that you build with your audience. If you have a reader base and your brand is HEAs, don't lose their trust by writing a tragedy (just for a twist). Deliver what you promise.

Can your books be read in any order?

I write both standalone books and serial reads. To help readers navigate the books, I have a reading order page on the website.

What is one thing that you want to say to your readers and fans of romance novels?

Thank you for reading them. And please drop by anytime to chat with me about romance books. I always love a good talk about my books or romance books in general.
