Sick Political Charlatans Still Lending Support to a Cult of Fascism

Time for Humanity to Turn the Tide

Where to turn for some sanity in this world?

Certainly not to the European Union or national leaders of the morally bankrupt West.

You would think it was insane enough that these fake 'leaders' continue to covertly – if not overtly – retain military and commercial trading ties with Israel, in full knowledge of that country's brutal ethnic cleansing of the population of Gaza and other settlements on Palestinian soil.

What an utter disgrace for countries which see themselves as 'civilised societies' to refrain from cutting off relations with the perpetrators of a fully documented holocaust.

But these same 'leaders' have not stopped here, they are repeating their blatantly immoral actions in Ukraine.

As many will now be aware, President Zelensky has openly praised the 1930's Ukraine Nazi movement led by Stepan Bandera, calling for Nazi-style celebrations on the anniversary of Bandera's founding of the Organisation of Ukrainian Nationalists.

Have Western countries expressed horror after realising that they spent billions of tax payers money on propping up a regime that openly endorses the fascist cause?

No. Just stone walled their reactions in a deliberate attempt to hide their complicity.

Poland has felt the need to take some minor stand against the horror. President Karol Nawrocki expressing the shock of much of the nation, has stripped Zelensky of a special award (Award of the White Eagle) ostensibly given to him for improving relations between Ukraine and Poland, but actually for being a keen foil to the Russian advance into the Donbas.

Poles have felt aggrieved by the failure of Ukraine's leaders to publicly apologise for the massacre of 100,000 Poles in a horrific Bandera-led mass murder spree during World War Two.

Polish efforts to elicit a formal apology for this nightmare were evaded or watered down into a few weak placatory noises by Zelensky. This, in spite of the fact that Poland has been directly aiding Ukraine's military activities since the outcome of the war.

But it should not just be Poles who are protesting their sense of grievance at the cold arrogance of Ukraine and Israeli leaders. It should be the whole world.

How, in 2026, is it possible that this evil Zionist death cult and the equally evil Bandera regime are not ostracised from all political and commercial dealings for so openly promoting the pursuit of Fascism?

The financial backers of the continuing war in Ukraine and that perpetrated by Israel, no doubt know the answer to this question. This posse of warmongers has been playing-out its hegemonic political chess game with the nations of the world for decades.

While government introduced lock-downs on people's basic freedoms continue a pace in the heartlands of European 'democratic civilisation' and in America's 'land of the free', the same governments, boasting their prowess as being at the forefront of defending the cause of justice 'against terrorism', remain fully complicit in failing to cut-off arms and financial support to countries openly committing egregious crimes against humanity.

The hypocrisy is mind bending.

In psychological terms it is called 'cognitive dissonance': a leader preaches democracy and human justice while simultaneously supporting the position of countries totally ignoring the International Convention on Human Rights, carrying out the ruthless murder of innocent men, women and children.

This, in truth, is a blatant form of clinical insanity. That such a sickness should be prevalent in the majority of world leaders to day, explains the ultra perilous position of our planet.

It is way beyond the bounds of any soothing diplomatic noises made by such leaders expressing their 'deep concern' for crimes that they themselves have sponsored. These shameful political charlatans get off lightly when confronted by journalists primed 'to get a reaction' but not to go any further in pinning responsibility on those who have the power to take action.

As we know, it's a vast stitch-up, in which newspaper and TV channel owners and influencers play their part in sticking to the cult's rules of the game 'not to shame' their political interviewees, as doing so would mean the financial support taps closing on that particular news enterprise.

The holy grail for further progress of The Great Reset, Net Zero, the Fourth Industrial Revolution and the UN's Sustainable Development 2030 goals, is to continue to bleed dry the working population of the world and steal their assets so that by 2030 "They will have nothing and will be happy" (Klaus Schwab).

This is deep state globalisation in action. The modern legal system was devised to support this end.

Nineteenth century colonial adventures taught predators how to shame their captives into being the guilty parties for defending their rights and homelands against invaders.

Only a slave relationship with the conqueror was acceptable, with the stolen bounty being used to enrich colonial ambitions. And so it continues today, with those fighting for basic justice and human rights being put through the courts accused of being terrorists and a threat to the state – which they are – a threat to the state of insanity and cognitive dissonance which rules the world under the fake emblem of democracy.

While brave souls continue to put themselves on the line to expose this sickness, their efforts attract the deep state Great Reset control agents. So we have to contend with the clinically insane propagation of the war against humanity moving in to destroy the last vestiges of privacy so as to establish the surveillance state and its Musk Starlink satellite space colonisation program.

The digitalisation and Smart electrification of communication systems and commerce accompanies this mass surveillance obsession, with data centres ominously sprouting up like deadly Amanita mushrooms to capture every last breath of those who, by the very act of being human, become an instant threat to the insanity of the state.

Rivers, lakes and reservoirs are to be sucked dry of their vital sustenance to crops, people and basic industries; not even for some 'benevolent' cause of mass communication, but for our 100% surveillance and central control.

This is the dream of the anti-life totalitarian cult that has not even a smidgeon of empathy for sentient human beings or for the unique gifts of nature.

Many of us are writing about this, so the ever increasing list of incriminating evidence against the pillars of the so called 'democratic status quo' do not need further elaboration here.

But what does need further elaboration is how 'we the people' should respond, recognising that we are caught in a relentlessly tightening net of anti-human oppression.

Hope in new and more enlightened leadership emerging out of this control system, is distinctly naive. Every new election hope turns out to be worse than the one before – and why should anyone be surprised? The framework in which this sycophantic society operates is itself mostly a thoroughly defiled copy of civilisation as it was once conceived by the Sumerians, Egyptians, Greeks and European Age of Enlightenment.

The present framework is bankrupt. Only those who have no imagination can be at peace with the endless self enrichment program of the never satiated neoliberal global market place and the multi billionaires who parasite it.

We living breathing human beings have an instinct that warns us and directs us at the same time. In the situation in which we find ourselves today, with its Great Reset totalitarian fascist agenda in full swing, what does that voice of our instinct tell us to do?

Mine tells me to draw upon whatever powers of resistance are available to me in order to hold the line concerning values that are fundamental to our survival as sentient, compassionate human beings. And at the same time, put in place – as far as possible – conditions that enable one to become independent of reliance on the corporate/governmental supply chain.

This has to be done in stages; it cannot happen in full in the short term unless one moves camp into a preprepared off-grid dwelling with its own food, water and power resource base. And even then, one needs the skills to maintain such a system.

Is a stash of gold going to save one? What is that gold going to buy when the supply chain is essentially poisoned? The Green New Deal and Fourth Industrial Revolution wants real food to be eviscerated or so badly denatured that it no longer supports living cells. Real food is to be replaced by laboratory created lookalikes in 'progressive' post industrial Northern hemisphere countries. Except, of course, for those running the show at the top end of the pyramid.

Mains water will be charged for at exorbitant rates and power even more so. This is already a serious problem for many, but its is set to get much worse.

'IT' will conduct the technocratic calculations of resource availability and algorithms will spin the message about how to "survive through obedience" in a time of crisis. And such a 'time of crisis' will be a permanent imposed condition.

You will be told this is the only way. And indeed it will be for those who have lost the spark that drives their creative responses.

That spark is our most enduring lifeline. Keep it alive and a pathway into a manageable future will open. Solutions will present themselves, courtesy of the Source of all existence

Nurturing this spark is therefore our imperative. Responding to its directives is our number one need. Doing both will bring us into a position of strength sufficient to overcome the anti-life fascists whose super inflated egos have the effect of making them believe they are impregnable.

They are not. In terms of evolutionary time they are a temporary hindrance and a massive kick for us to wake up and sieze back control of our destinies. In the bigger picture they are vectors of the paradox of evil having the function of accelerating the pursuit of truth.

We must remember this and always keep that awareness at the forefront of endeavours to expose and overcome their poisonous acts of deception.

The breakthrough will come, but its trigger will be our consistent and insistent determination to fight-on for that ideal which humanity has always held closest to its heart and which never stops demanding to be brought to fruition.
