

Miscellaneous (screen/projection context)

Miscellaneous is a 'performance accompanied film presentation' developed with a view to ad libitum physical action and spontaneous verbal/vocal/sonic production. The fluid and unscripted process allows the work to unfold as unique to its particular space and audience. The films selected are chosen at random from the personal archives of the artist and loosely assembled to form a collection of excerpts with intermittent breaks amounting, in total to a 30/40 minute performance up to 8 hours. The purpose of the breaks is to allow space for the performative elements and responses to occur. However, performance/interaction is not confined to these windows.
