

A LITTLE SOMETHIN, SOMETIN FROM HOME “YEAH.”

Louisiana ed Beans and Rice:

This Red Beans and Rice is a signature dish of Louisiana Creole cuisine that’s traditionally prepped up on Mondays made primarily with red beans, vegetables (onion, celery, and bell pepper – the holy trinity of creole cooking), common spices, and pork, slowly cooked in a pot and served with rice. Back then, Mondays in New Orleans were traditionally laundry day. And women need a dish that they can just leave on the stovetop to cook itself Red Beans and Rice Recipe – smoky, spicy, and overly comforting beans and rice combo with smoked sausage and turkey flavored with creole seasoning. Delightfully full of complex flavors that are simple and easy. Truly a must-have on your weekly rotation! ðle they do the laundry.
