

Strategies for the Emerging English Proficient/Multilingual Student

Designed for students, college and university faculty, instructors, advisors, and academic support staff.

Outcomes

- Participants will learn how to scaffold instruction without lowering academic rigor.
- Faculty will gain practical strategies to support emerging English proficient/multilingual students' academic success.
- Emerging English proficient/multilingual learners will engage in interactive workshops designed to prepare them for the workforce.

Workshops, Keynotes & Professional Development Sessions Available

Virtual / In-person / Hybrid Options Available

PRESENTED BY:
DR. ROSALINDA GONZALES

Background

Born in Mexico and raised in Texas by immigrant parents, Dr. Rosalinda Gonzales' first language was Spanish. She chose to pursue a career as a bilingual educator to achieve full proficiency in English while preserving her native language. A first-generation college graduate, she chose to pursue a career as a bilingual educator to become fully proficient in English while preserving her native language. Today, Dr. Gonzales speaks to students and educators across the United States about overcoming barriers to achieving higher educational goals.

Services/Trainings Available

Second Language Acquisition (SLA) and Applied Linguistics

Training in how adults acquire a second language helps professors understand language development stages, common challenges, and realistic expectations for ESOL learners. This knowledge supports more effective instruction, feedback, and assessment.

Culturally Responsive and Inclusive Teaching Practices

This training helps faculty recognize how culture, identity, and prior educational experiences influence learning. Professors learn strategies to create inclusive classrooms that value students' linguistic and cultural backgrounds while promoting academic success.

From Classroom to Career: Academic Language and Its Application in the Workforce

Teach academic vocabulary, writing conventions, and discourse patterns specific to your field. Training helps participants understand how academic language skills transfer directly to workplace communication, professionalism, and career advancement.

Assessment and Feedback for English Learners

This training, focused on fair and effective assessment, teaches instructors how to evaluate content knowledge separately from language proficiency when appropriate, provide constructive feedback, and design assessments that accurately measure learning outcomes for emerging English proficient students.

An education becomes part of who you are, giving you strength, opportunity, and a future no one can erase.

Contact us to schedule a workshop or keynote.

830-290-8046

PO Box 530245, Harlingen, TX 78553 resiliencydoc.com

yourresiliencydoc@gmail.com