Story

The Bandos are a reclusive species, each born with special powers on their planet of Bandor. In the old days, their ancestors were harvested, enslaved and used as warriors in every corner of the galaxy.

Eventually, they gained their freedom, and exiled themselves on their home planet in the hopes of living in peace.

And so it was, until Mokan Barc, the czar of the Barcider clan, began hunting down the seven mothers of the Yenohbee clan and threatening the destruction of entire planets, to include Bandor.

As the unspoken leader of the Bandos, the Tunu family are forced to take action and join the battle of a thousand planets against the insidious Barcriders.

When Scar Haver, a fighter pilot for the Yenohbee faction, crash lands on Bandor, young Hicks and Rage Tunu are drawn into the war as they are sent on a mission to find their missing father. A warrior, who was lost in battle while protecting a mystical creature that could hold the key to saving the galaxy and defeating the Barcriders.

With her husband and children scattered and lost, Sol Tunu is alone, faced with preventing the destruction of their home and their way of life.
