

Entries:

1. Appropriate Responses to Racism
2. Thoughts on Misogynoir & Body Shaming
3. Free The Nipple

Can you believe I posted this on FB and didn't catch a ban?! RIP free speech, hello META 😊

Kidsingggg my rights are not complimentary mints, bitches cannot just take them 😊

facebook

Tajh Danielle Sutton

Jun 12, 2020 · 8

'Black on Black cri-' DELETE

'All Lives Ma-' BLOCK

'Not all co-' HADOUUUUKEN

Ayaba Fəgə + 277

3.2K shares

Hayward Anderson + 1.3K

950 shares

Tajh Danielle Sutton

May 22, 2019 · 🧑🏾

Megan Thee Stallion is a national treasure. As always y'all are coming through with the hate on an unambiguously Black girl in what should be a beautifully Black genre which is cool. We're used to that. Y'all been hating on 'strong faced' Black girls since forever.

Personally I really started to notice it with Lil' Mama She was so OBVIOUSLY talented and all folks wanted to talk about was her 'strong jaw.'

Then y'all thought it would be cool to pretend Ciara was Trey Songz and spread rumors she was a man, ignoring her talent, prowess and hit after hit after hit, focusing on her dancing cause you couldn't deny it.

Then y'all acted like Teyana Taylor was just some random from my super sweet 16 and y'all were sooo shocked she had a husband and a baby and the only thing that forced you to stop asking stupid, transphobic nonsense like 'ok but whose the man/top?' Was her INCREDIBLE album. Yes I remember all of it.

As a former tomboy with a strong ass jaw and muscular arms I remember all of it. Seeing these women survive and thrive despite your gendered, colorist bullshit has been incredibly special and the trend WILL continue with Meg- TRUST.

The fact that some folks are arguing about who is and who isn't a STALLION is equal parts hilarious and embarrassing. Let tall girls live. We never talk about how we push masculinity onto tall women, especially tall BLACK women. Height is an intersection folks.

Fat women and tall women have unique experiences and women who are Tall AND thick? Listen. They have stories. And we should listen and give them room to be celebrated. PeriodT.

To all the Black girls lifting other Black girls up and working on un learning what they've been taught about who/ what is beautiful, feminine, lady like, and whether or not those ideas are even valid in the first place- I salute you.

Tajh Danielle Sutton

Jul 18, 2018 · 👤

Listen.

My tiddies were everywhere when I breastfed Jayla.

I took her into a restaurant bathroom all of TWO times I can remember to breastfeed.

Eww.

Never again.

Y'all will get these tiddies on a plane.

Y'all will get these tiddies on the train.

Y'all will get these tiddies at the school.

Y'all will get these tiddies by the pool.

These tiddies gon' be here and there.

These tiddies gon' be EVERYWHERE.

When baby's hungry, sir or ma'am.

Imma breastfeed WHEREVER THE FUCK I AM.

Imagine being so obsessed with what (other) women are doing with their breasts that you spend your time shaming them for using a human body part for its primary function

As for the 'public' aspect? SMD.

Y'all look at tiddies all day everyday and you LOVE it.

Don't get scared now.

And no that doesn't mean you get to sexualize women while they're breastfeeding 'since they decided to do it in public' just like you don't get to sexualize women for wearing certain clothes or dancing a certain way or anything else.

All these judgements y'all make are reflections of YOU, not the women you insist on policing.

Tiddies are only so heavily associated with sex because niggas are so heavily and unhealthily obsessed with the female form while completely disconnected from how to nurture, understand or please it.

Talmbout 'breasts are a secondary sex organ' and can't even suck a nipple properly 🤔

It's also interesting to me that breasts are so heavily sexualized while pubic hair is so hated when it's all a result of puberty. Y'all love 'women' parts but don't want proof that they're attached to a FULL GROWN woman, huh?

Interesting.

Anyways.

I'm finna pop my tiddy out one good time

#ForTheCulture

Amber Sherman + 3.6K

2.2K shares

Muvas <3

BEWBS <3

Thanks For Reading

I'm new to zine making but I'm a life long shit talker especially against systems of oppression. After years of policy briefs, movement demands, city council testimonies and stakeholder meetings I am thrilled to share my voice my way.

Created in 2026.
Copyright @SchoolBoardBaddie A.K.A
Tajh Sutton

