

SCHOLARSHIPS – Higher Education

About the Award

To support the educational goals of our eligible employee families and to provide financial assistance for higher education. HED scholarship awards are available for eligible recipients enrolled in a degree-earning program (Associates or equivalent, Bachelors, Masters, or Doctorate).

Award amounts will be determined by these criteria after all applications are received:

- Financial Need – based upon income, size of household and individual circumstances from information provided from your FAFSA
- Academic Merit – based upon a minimum 2.5 GPA, academic achievement and community service involvement
- Tuition Cost - based upon tuition cost for fall and spring semesters combined

Eligibility Guidelines

Award Procedure

Higher Education scholarship awards are paid directly to the student and covers tuition costs, official student fees, and textbooks that correspond with each semester's official curriculum. This award does not cover extra-curricular activities, housing, supplies, or transportation costs. The applicant will be responsible for any expenses not covered by this award.

If you receive an award, you must provide a current invoice, tuition statement or receipt with proof of payment. The tuition information provided in your application to the Foundation is not acceptable for payment of your award. Award payments are made twice per academic year. To receive your second semester award payment, you will need to submit a copy of your second semester invoice and first semester grades showing a minimum cumulative 2.5 GPA.

If the employee ends employment within the Hualālai community during the school year, this will disqualify all award payments.
