The Blue box is the City Commons. The only areas known at the time are the Garden Lots, Farm Lots, and Poor House and Hospital (PH&H). The PH&H was granted 5-acres in the City Commons by the Mayor & Aldermen in 1818. Currently, this is the only known configuration of the 5-acres. The displayed Garden Lots and Farm Lots were privately owned. This map shows the imagined continuation of Oglethorpe's Plan to the edges of the City Common. In the early evolution of Forsyth Park, Forsyth Place was the name given to the northern part of the park (light green). The red area is the approximate shape/location of the hotel with a star in the area where the bone was found.

The 1844 article below explains the placement of the two, lost cemeteries. The surveys for the cemeteries is lost. Using measurements generated from SAGIS, 5-acres is depicted for the location of the Poor House and Hospital going south.

WM. A. CARUTHERS,
F. S. BARTOW,
The Resolution was adopted.
The Committee on Health and Cemetery, to whom was referred the resolution to enquire into the expediency of closing the strangers' burial ground and negro cemetery, recommend the closing of the same, for two reasons—First, that the ground cannot be broken without disturbing the remains of the dead. Secondly, that the new cemetery encroaches upon private property, and offered the following resolutions, (which were adopted):
Resolved, That the Chairman on Health and Cemetery be authorized to close the Strangers' Burial Ground and Negro Cemetery, and that he be authorized to have enclosed any ground belonging to the city South of the Hospital for two other Cemeteries.
Resolved, That the City Surveyor be and he is hereby authorized to lay out the same.
