

PAIN AND DENTAL HYPNOSIS PAGE 7

HAVE YOU BEEN REJECTED BY YOUR DOCTOR FOR YOUR PAIN
MEDICATION OR CHRONIC PAIN
ISSUES?

ARE YOU DISSATISFIED
WITH YOUR CURRENT PAIN
MANAGEMENT PROGRAM?

----PLEASE READ THIS----

By the way, are you a dental fraidy cat?
Do you know a dental fraidy cat that needs help?

Of all of the subjects to be involved with in hypnosis pain management is the one that is the most sensitive and the most complex.

Dental Hypnosis is much easier and straight forward as I teach the Dentist to act in the role of the Hypnotist and his patient to act in the role of the subject.

No more jitters for the dental patient and a tremendously easy person to work with on from the Dentists' perspective.

A win-win for both.

Hypnosis holds the potential to be an adjunct to what you are doing now.

It is not a replacement.

That means that if you are on pain medications you stay on them.

Ditto for seeing the Doctor, Chiropractor and Acupuncturist.

Like I said on the FAQ page you have to meet the standards of what it takes to learn to be hypnotized, hence the statement above of it being a potential adjunct.

If you can learn it, it will help you.

Why hypnosis is valuable as an adjunct to the therapy you are currently using is that it is able to make your mind and body cooperate more with what you are doing and have the results of what you are doing be of greater effect.

You can learn with hypnosis how to:

- 1) become more sensitive to the pain medications you are using so you can use less.
- 2) perform techniques that make a Chiropractic adjustment last longer.
- 3) make the medications you consume have a greater and longer lasting effect.
- 4) (temporarily) anesthetize parts of your body.

Marijuana use and illicit drug use and my opinion.

I suspect there are about a million different opinions on marijuana and how it should or should not be involved in peoples chronic pain treatment scenarios, for recreational use , let alone all the awful effects of illicit drugs.

Marijuana alone has a tremendously pernicious effect on peoples drive and ambition for sure and I think it should be avoided for just this reason.

Marijuana use and illicit drug use while dealing with Kris.

I tell people who use either to not come to me as it lessens my chance for success in my business.
