The Story: Detroit-style pizza is a deep-dish rectangular pizza topped with Wisconsin brick cheese and a cooked tomato-based sauce. The dough typically has a higher hydration level than your typical pizza dough, which creates an open, porous, chewy crust with a crisp exterior. Detroit-style pizza was developed in 1946 at Buddy's Rendezvous, a former speakeasy owned by Gus and Anna Guerra located at the corner of Six Mile Road and Conant Street in Detroit. Some claim the original Sicilian-style recipe was based on Anna Guerra's mother's recipe for sfincione or a recipe from one of the restaurant's employees, a Sicilian woman named Connie Piccinato. The recipe created a "focaccia-like crust" and baked it in blue steel pans, just like we do today. We hope you enjoy our pizza and tell your friends. Buon Appetito!

Our Mission: At Sapote Detroit Pizzeria, we are passionately dedicated to sharing our family's culinary legacy, presenting the most delectable authentic Detroit style pizzas, and beloved Chicagos' street food favorites. Every item is a taste for the soul, served with the most generous and welcoming spirit of the Batsios family hospitality.

Sincerely,
...Chris
