

We like music, so the audio/video is built around this.

Don't worry about all the options, you'll probably only use:

The TV, along with Apple TV.

Bluetooth or Airplay for music.

CD/DVD, music/video. Same settings, different outputs.

But first of all, turn on everything at the wall.

And then make sure the Belkin circuit breaker is lit up.

SpiritHouse Wi-Fi can take 10 minutes to fully connect.

Don't forget to turn off at the wall as you leave, thanks.

Wall Switches behind here

This button is a short cut to the TV Inputs.

Central ring/button navigates the Inputs.

WATCHING TELEVISION:

Turn on TV. It will start on the last input.

If it was last on "TV": the picture shows and the Marantz NR1200 will turn on (after 15-20 seconds).

Press "TV/Audio" on the Marantz remote.

Choose your channel from the list below left.

Or use the "Guide" Button on the Sony Remote.

If it was on "HDMI 1": then use the Sony Remote button to choose TV. (Shown at left)

Press the top left button on Sony Remote.

TV or HDMI inputs will show on the TV screen.

Use the central button on the Sony remote to switch between outputs.

If the sound ever disappears, turn Marantz off & on.

The Sony Remote Home button also allows TV navigation

The Sony TV also has ABC iView - selectable via the Home Button

If Screen is black, press any TV channel on the remote to change.

The Marantz Amp is set up to stream music, or play it direct. Let's begin by assuming everything is switched on.

Speakers:

Speaker switch is the bottom-left button on Marantz Remote. Or from the button on the Marantz Receiver.

Speaker A: Suits Music.

Speaker B: Suits TV.

But no big deal whichever you use.

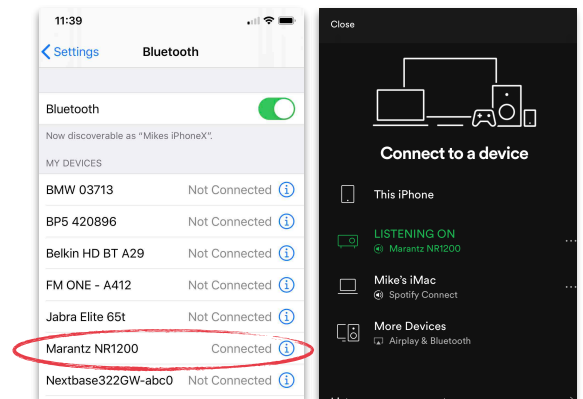

Sometimes music and movies sound great with A&B playing.

Marantz remote controls most things. Including speaker selection
