The team from BRMG coached our team on how to project professionally, with warmth (and some style) in front of the camera. Her crew included a hairstylist who gave everyone a better look, a makeup artist who taught our team to use the right products in the right way (and left them with their own kit); wardrobe consultation along with practical in-studio coaching. Their starting point was for our team to be themselves, just a little more put together and polished. We left the consultation encouraged and equipped.
