Promote the flow...

As open plan living becomes more popular, handleless kitchens have become the perfect choice, as they offer a seamless transition between living areas and the kitchen area.

When planning your layout, factor in exactly how the kitchen will work in relation to the rest of the house, and how the overall space will flow and feel. Style your spaces with complementary colours and harmonious textures to link them together.

Super Matt Jet & Woodgrain Natural Oak

Industrial revelation

The back-to-basics style of an industrial style kitchen is the epitome of effortlessly cool luxury. Raw materials and tough fixtures and finishes take centre stage - think of surfaces like concrete and steel, exposed brick, natural wood and plenty of open space.

Combining functionality with simplistic beauty can create quite a restrained style, so soften with patterns and textures for a welcoming ambience.

Super Matt Jet doors have a richness and depth which creates a luxurious atmosphere and elevates the whole look of your kitchen.

This sophisticated dark hue contrasts perfectly with the warm tones of Woodgrain Natural Oak to create a balanced look, creating a relaxed and inviting atmosphere.

Black profiles, matching shelving and accessories creates a cohesive space, with subtle layering that delivers individualism and personality.

Setosa Painted

Setosa Painted - Pebble

Larger spaces look outstanding in a bright and airy colour scheme. Combine subtle, natural shades and textures to create a warm, relaxed vibe that is effortlessly elegant and refined. Accessorise with charcoal profiles for defined linearity, which displays the streamlined style of the Novus kitchen to perfection.

Outside in

A large glazed door is great to separate your kitchen from outdoor areas. It will increase the feeling of open space, making the garden more accessible during the summer months and letting in natural light throughout the year.

As a quick and easy fix, fill two large planters, one with ferns for inside the home and one with ferns for outside. Place them opposite each other - inside and out - and you'll instantly link the spaces.

Super Matt Quartz

Japandi simplicity
Japandi is a mix of Japanese and Scandinavian styles - a calming fusion from two different sides of the world.

This trend lends itself perfectly to the kitchen space as it blends the smooth, modern lines of Scandinavian design with the elegant yet functional Japanese aesthetic. Japandi style is designed to create warm inviting spaces, full of texture and tone. Mixing neutral colours with natural materials - a minimalist's dream.

Super Matt Quartz with Woodgrain Natural Oak

The warm tones of Woodgrain Natural Oak doors and brushed brass profiles, alongside pristine Super Matt Quartz cabinetry creates a restful, relaxed ambience. This modern space is calm and harmonious, whilst remaining functional and easy to use. The neutral tones can work with any colour scheme, for a wide range of decorating and accessorising options.

Small but perfectly formed
For a smaller space, make use of every available inch of space
by planning units with pull out internal storage.

Use these to keep any mess out of sight and work surfaces clear of clutter.

Don't be afraid to use colour in a smaller kitchen - mix
a bolder shade with timeless, elegant natural tones and soft textures for an appealing layered look.

Signature Painted Graphite with Setosa Painted Spitfire Blue

Layered tones of Spitfire Blue and Graphite gives a chic and sophisticated feel to a small space. Mixing a darker colour with a lighter, contrasting tone creates a look that feels richer and more moody, but isn't overbearing.

The kitchen and living area are blended seamlessly together using black framed shelving. This way colours and textures can be coordinated, so there are no jarring elements to your scheme.
