Playing Provisional Ball After Search Has Started Is Allowed
 A player may play a provisional ball for a ball that might be lost up until the point when the three-minute search time has ended.
 For example IF a player is able to return to the spot of their previous stroke and play a provisional ball before the three-minute search time has ended, the player is allowed to do so. If the player plays the provisional ball and the original ball is then found within the three-minute search time, the player must continue to play with the original ball.
