

JOHN MOLLURA

- PHOTOGRAPHY -

WHAT YOU'VE BEEN USED TO
	Having to figure out what to wear.
	SPOILER ALERT: Things that look good in person, don't always look the best on camera
	Making sure their hair and make-up looks good on the day of the shoot
	SPOILER ALERT: Don't spend the time at home on your hair and make-up only to have it wrecked by wind, rain, or scorching sun while walking into the shoot.
	Knowing how to pose.
	SPOILER ALERT: Fractions of an inch can make a dramatic impact (for better or worse) in a photo
	Wading through a huge gallery (looking at themselves) to select their favorites -
	SPOILER ALERT: It can get awkward staring at yourself in a bunch of photos
	Finding the time to create an album, selecting frames, getting things printed, and hung on the wall.
	SPOILER ALERT: Many people have such full schedules that they NEVER get around to printing images or making an album... the photos just sit on a thumb drive on in an online gallery waiting for "the someday" that never comes.

WORKING WITH JOHN
	John personally helps clients pick out their wardrobes and advises them on colors, patterns and cuts which will be the most flattering on camera.
	No need to worry about making your hair or skin look perfect, because John's professional hair and make-up artist partner pampers clients at the photoshoot location
	During the shoot, John uses his years of experience, artist's eye, and professional posing training to guide clients into the most flattering poses throughout the shoot - no more awkward hands!
	A few days after the shoot, John sits down with clients and guides them through the image selection process.
	John understands the power of a printed photograph, which is why he has partnered with artisans across the United States to provide heirloom quality prints, canvases, framed wall art, and beautiful photo albums. No need to imagine what the wall art will look like on your walls, John will show you, in real time, what different frames and sizes look like on YOUR walls. Complimentary installation of all wall art is also part of the experience and so is a lifetime, no question asked, warranty to replace any printed products.