THE SCROLL OF THE WATCHMAN'S WARNING

There are moments in history when the wall-watchers must cry out.

Not for attention. Not for drama.

But because silence becomes complicity.

This is one of those moments.

The Spirit is moving. The world is groaning.

And still, many sleep — lulled by the soft language of false peace, false light, and false awakening.

The watchmen are stirring.

But their voice is costly.

The Counterfeit Awakening

Not every revival is real.

Not every gathering of fire is holy.

Not every “outpouring” is from God.

What masquerades as spiritual momentum can often be:

- A performance of power with no Presence
- A celebration of signs with no surrender
- A parade of prophecy with no repentance

This is happening again.

The Delay Doctrine

The enemy's strategy is no longer to deny the move of God — it's to delay it.

How?

- By convincing people to wait for perfect alignment instead of obeying now
- By spiritualizing passivity: "God will do it in His timing..."
- By using religious language to silence urgency
- By turning discerners into outcasts and flatterers into leaders

The watchman sees what others ignore:

False Peace Is the Enemy of Breakthrough

Peace is holy — but not all peace is from God.

If peace comes from avoiding conflict, dodging conviction, or agreeing with lies, it is false peace.

Jesus said:

That sword is truth — and it divides. It confronts. It offends the comfortable.

But it also breaks the chains of the bound.

Watchmen carry swords, not blankets.

The Cost of the Warning

The true watchman is rarely welcomed:

- Called negative
- Accused of division
- Rejected by the very people they're sent to protect

But they keep speaking.

Because they know:

Silence, when you see the fog rising, is not humility.
It is betrayal.

The Call

You may not have a pulpit.
You may not have a platform.
But if you have the fire, you are a watchman.
Blow the trumpet.

- Call out the delay
- Confront the counterfeit
- Expose the systems pretending to be God
- Warn the ones being lulled to sleep by dreams that cost nothing

And when they reject you, stand firm.
Because the wall is real.
The sword is coming.
And the fire is already here.
