To the Eternal Flame, Jesus Christ — the Light of the world, the Keeper of every soul, and the Giver of all hope. These scrolls are offered back to You, Lord, as a small reflection of the fire You have placed within us. May every flame keeper who reads these words find courage to stand, strength to persevere, and joy in knowing that Your light will never be overcome by darkness. You are the oil for our lanterns, the dawn that ends the long night, and the reason we shine. All glory belongs to You, now and forever.

OPENING SCROLL

THE FLAME THAT DOES NOT FADE

"The Keeper of the Lantern does not fear the night, for he knows the light within is stronger than the darkness around him. The oil of hope and faith keeps his flame alive. And wherever he goes, even the lost can find the way, for light always calls to the heart."

THE LANTERN KEEPER SCROLLS

Scroll I – The Light Carrier

"You are the keeper of a flame not your own — a light given from the Eternal Fire. Do not hide it when the night deepens, for it was never meant to be locked away. Your flame may seem small, but even a single light can scatter a thousand shadows. Tend the flame with prayer, with hope, and with love. Others will find their path because you refused to let the darkness win."

Scroll II – The Path of Perseverance

"The Lantern Keeper does not fear the storms or the howling winds, for his light is not from this world. It is fed by faith, trimmed by patience, and strengthened by the breath of God. When others grow weary, the Lantern Keeper whispers courage. He knows that every long night must give way to dawn, and every shadow bows to the first light of morning. Hold fast — your endurance will awaken hope in those who have forgotten it."

Scroll III – The Watchman’s Vigil

"The Lantern Keeper stands on the wall, flame in hand, as a watchman of the night. His eyes scan the horizon, not with fear but with discernment. He prays for the weary travelers, interceding for those who cannot yet see the light. His flame is both a warning and an invitation — a signal fire declaring that the way is open and that no darkness can claim what God has called His own. Stand firm, for your light is a shield for many."

Scroll IV – The Voice of Encouragement

"A single word of hope is like oil for a weary lantern. Speak light into the hearts of those who are fading, for even the smallest encouragement can reignite a soul. The Lantern Keeper knows that hope is contagious; it spreads like fire from wick to wick. Do not withhold your words of life, for they are sparks from the eternal flame."

Scroll V – The Oil of Renewal

"The Lantern Keeper does not let his flame burn unattended. He returns often to the source — to the quiet presence of God — to be refilled and renewed. For a lantern without oil is only an empty vessel, but a lantern filled with the Spirit burns brighter than any darkness. Return, refill, and rest, for your flame will guide many more nights yet to come."

Scroll VI – Guarding the Flame

"The wind will howl, and shadows will seek to snuff out your light, but the Keeper holds the lantern close to his heart. Guard your flame with prayer, with discernment, and with truth. Not every voice deserves your attention, and not every path is meant for your feet. Stay rooted in the Word and in love, and no storm will overcome your fire."

Scroll VII – The Beacon for the Lost

"Your light is not for you alone. The Lantern Keeper lifts his flame high so that the lost may see and return home. Do not underestimate the power of a single, steady glow in the wilderness — it can call wandering souls back from the edge of despair. Shine without fear, for your light is a signal of hope to those who believe they are too far gone."

Scroll VIII – Enduring the Long Night

"The longest nights are not meant to break you but to prove the endurance of your flame. The Lantern Keeper knows that darkness is temporary, a shadow that trembles at the promise of dawn. Hold your lantern high, even when you are tired, for it is often in the deepest night that your light shines brightest."

Scroll IX – The Call to Awaken

"The Lantern Keeper walks through sleeping villages, whispering, 'Awake, for the morning draws near.' Your flame is not only for comfort but for awakening — to stir the hearts of those who have forgotten to watch and pray. Let your light call them, not with harshness but with the gentle voice of dawn, reminding them that hope is rising."

Scroll X – Carrying the Lantern into the Dawn

"There comes a time when the night breaks and the first light of morning touches the earth. The Lantern Keeper does not lower his flame but walks boldly into the dawn, knowing his task was never just to survive the night but to carry hope into the new day. Keep walking. The dawn is here, and your light has not been in vain."

BLESSING

"May the eternal light of Christ burn steadily within you, even when the night feels endless.

May your lantern never lack oil, for He Himself is your source and your strength.

May every step you take become a path for others to find hope, and may your flame awaken courage in hearts that have forgotten how to dream.

The One who called you to keep the light will keep you, and His fire will never fail you.

Walk boldly, flame keeper — for the dawn is already breaking, and your light has not been in vain. Amen."
