

Curriculum Vitae

Norman Ismael Mueller a.k.a. NM, date of birth: 19 February 1982.

NM uses different names for different instrumentations and methods in his solo works and projects:

- Ypsmael (live performance, hardware-based electroacoustic improvisation),
- SmaelyP (sound collage, radio play, live performance),
- AeLypsm (physical computing, sound collage, live performance),
- Psmaely (synthesis, live performance), and
- MaeLyps (organisation of concerts, workshops, netlabel from 2012 - 2019, on hiatus)

Most of his artistic work can be found under the Ypsmael moniker, work as producer / engineer under NM and Soundindex.

Education

2018-2021 – M.A. MusicDesign, Furtwangen University and Trossingen University of Music, DE

2003-2007 – B.A. International Management (Honours), Anglia Ruskin University, Cambridge, UK

After graduation, I was employed full-time in the private sector for 1.5 years, followed by 4.5 years (from 2009 to 2014) of PhD research studies on the topic of research and development (open innovation). The so-called 'confirmation of candidature' phase of the programme (equivalent to M.Phil.) was completed before I left the programme as part of a restructuring of the team.

Educational Work

2010-present – Freelance organisation of improvisation performances/workshops, internationally
 2022-2025 – Course development (MMus Composition), research, Trossingen University of Music, DE
 2018-2019 – Start-up incubation, University of Applied Sciences, Albstadt-Sigmaringen, DE
 2009-2014 – Research Ph.D. programme, Anglia Ruskin University, Cambridge, UK
 2002-2003 – Tutoring (entry level English, French, Spanish), Studienkreis Villingen and Tuttlingen, DE

In parallel, NM has been employed outside the arts and education between 2000 and 2009, including business project management, consultancy, sales and a work placement at a record label. A separate CV detailing work outside the arts is available on request.

Ypsmael was primarily a live project between 2010 and 2020, which frequently collaborated with other artists, as well as under various pseudonyms. Most of Ypsmael's released works prior to 2020 were recorded live, often with a single microphone and on a single track, and deliberately without further editing, mixing or mastering. Before 2020, some live sets also included elements of visual and/or performance interventions in many different settings such as concert, installation, dance, performance art, film, theatre, video art, live cinema, live painting and poetry.

NM/Ypsmael has co-curated and artistically contributed to a number of events and concert series, including The Experimental Sounding Board (2013): A Feedback Loop of Live Painting and Sound Art in Brighton, Hamburg and Bonn, and as co-initiator, founding member and artistic co-director of Global Forest 2017, Global Forest e.V., Reservoir e.V. and Reservoir 2019. Between 2012 and 2019, MaeLyps was the DIY outfit for concerts and workshops organised by NM. MaeLyps was dedicated to presenting experimental music and related art projects without a budget (on a voluntary basis) in order to facilitate, promote, curate, document and collaborate on live performances. Live recordings were either archived, published or passed on to publishers with the artist's consent. (Example: John Chantler, Touch Music). Since 2024, Soundindex.de has brought together some of these activities, focusing on workshops, improvisation and recording sessions, as well as the production of music and media art.

Artist Statement

Ypsmael fuses and layers manipulated audio feedback with sounds of modified and self-made instruments, amplified objects, spatial acoustic properties and environmental noises. His approach to sound resembles a kind of sculpting with sounds, a process that evokes rather than explains - a journey of discovery in which the music plays the musician. Ypsmael is an open vessel and hence subject to fluctuations, including fragility and vulnerability. His approach melds electroacoustic improvisation, collage and composition. Each performance and project is unique due to ever changing combinations of digital and analog circuits, arrangements of found sounds and sonic artifacts. Through intensive listening, auditory impressions seek sonic routes and identities. The result is a triad between the already existing (the room), the emergent, as well as decisions to be made in situ.
