Day 1 | Arrive Zanzibar, Tanzania – Where Tradewinds Converge

Also known as the “Spice Island,” Zanzibar boasts a vibrant culture borne of deep-rooted trade traditions and an eclectic mix of Moorish, Middle Eastern, Indian, African and colonial European influences. This heritage is best reflected in the lanes and markets of Stone Town, Zanzibar’s UNESCO-listed Old Town.

Day 2 | Zanzibar – Stone Town’s Hotbeds of History

Stone Town is a maze of narrow alleys lined with houses, shops, bazaars and mosques constructed of the island’s ubiquitous reddish warm coral stone. Here, the lanes teem with locals on bicycles and motorbikes going about the day’s business in the faded shadows of merchants and traders from ancient civilizations. Dive into this hotbed of culture and history with visits to Christ Church Cathedral, built on the site of a former slave market; the Palace of the Sultans, adorned with treasures and rich carvings; the old Arabic Fort; and Forodhani Park, a shaded respite from the energy of the city.
