Kayaking at sunset on our calm Class I river gives you a whole new perspective on the desert. As the heat drops and the evening light settles in, you'll paddle through golden hour into early twilight, with the sky reflecting off the water and the surrounding landscape taking on a softer, more vibrant glow.

This is an approachable adventure, great for families and first-timers. You'll do some light paddling, and your guide will be right there to share insights about the Sonoran Desert's geology, wildlife, and river ecosystem.

The river acts as a true desert oasis, drawing in wildlife. It's common to spot wild horses, bald eagles, and a variety of birds along the banks. With cooler air, smooth water, and silhouetted mountains in the distance, this tour offers a peaceful, scenic way to experience the desert at its most beautiful.
