The Final Regulations also provide another exception possibly applicable to the investment in the Shares of the Company. Assets of an "operating company" will not be deemed to be plan assets under the Final Regulations. An operating company is an entity that is primarily engaged in the production or sale of a product or service other than the investment of capital. An operating company may also be a "venture capital operating company" or a "real estate operating company", as defined in the Final Regulations.

A final exemption may apply if equity participation in the Shares of the Company by ERISA plans and IRAs is not significant. Equity participation is significant if 25% or more of the value of any class of equity securities in the Company is held by ERISA plans and IRAs. The Company will monitor investment in the Company Shares, to comply with this exemption. However, if the Company fails to comply with this exemption, the Company will become a plan fiduciary which may elevate their status to that of a guarantor of the Loan. If the Company becomes a plan fiduciary, it will be required to become bonded and file reports with the Department of Labor.

Persons who contemplate purchasing Shares on behalf of employee trusts, other ERISA plans or IRAs are urged to consult with tax and ERISA counsel regarding the effect of such purchase and, further, to determine whether such a purchase will result in a prohibited transaction under ERISA or the Code. The Manager and the Company necessarily will rely on such determinations made by such persons, although no Shares knowingly will be sold to any employee trust, other ERISA plans or IRAs if final sale will result in a prohibited transaction under ERISA or the Code.

Prospective Members which are tax-exempt entities, including charitable and other exempt organizations, pensions, profit sharing or stock bonus plans, Keogh Plans, IRAs and certain other employee benefit plans should note, among other things, that net income derived from the conduct of a trade or business regularly carried on by them may constitute unrelated business income on which a tax is imposed (“UBTI”). In the case of an IRA, for example, UBTI is subject to taxation at marginal brackets applicable to the IRA as an entity to the extent that such UBTI exceeds $1,000 in any taxable year. A tax-exempt entity is engaged in an unrelated trade or business if it carries on a trade or business unrelated to its exempt purpose or if it is a partner in a company which carries on such business. Interest income is generally excluded from UBTI. The Company anticipates virtually all of its income will consist of interest excluded from UBTI. However, to the extent that the Company borrows money to acquire property or a tax-exempt entity borrows money to acquire Shares, a portion of the income from such “debt financed property” may be UBTI even if it constitutes an otherwise excludable item such as interest income. For these reasons, a portion of the Company’s income could constitute UBTI. Prospective Members, therefore, should carefully consider whether an investment in the Company is appropriate for them and is otherwise in accord with the exempt purposes for which they may have been created. Fiduciaries of IRAs should note that an investment in the Company will not, in and of itself, create an IRA for any investor and that, in order to create an IRA, an investor must himself comply with the provisions of the Code, and all applicable limitations thereunder. In this regard, the Tax Reform Act of 1986 significantly limited the deductibility of contributions to IRAs for certain taxpayers, and provides, for example, that taxpayers having income in excess of certain specified limits may not deduct contributions to an IRA if the taxpayer and his or her spouse file a joint return and either is an active participant in an employer maintained retirement plan.

Additional Financing

The Company may raise additional funds and complete production of, ‘EPE Live’, ‘Sadako’, ‘EPE Webvvision Global Innovations’, ‘EPE4DX’, ‘Spin Cycle 2’ et al, by Pre-Licensing rights in some territories and/or obtaining financing through banks or other sources. Two primary other sources of financing are Pre-Licensing of Intellectual Property Rights on a territory by territory basis and borrowing from a bank or other financial institution against the value of unsold territories (gap financing).

Pre-Licensing of Intellectual Rights is a process whereby the Production Company obtains funds from third parties (generally payable upon delivery of the applicable property) in return for granting such third parties a license to exploit the completed Entertainment Properties in a particular market or in a particular media within a particular market. For example, a Production Company may license only Home Media Rights in a territory to one entity and Television Rights in the same territory to a different entity. The Company may also obtain some portion of the financing through subsidies or tax benefits available in certain foreign countries such as Canada.

Key Personnel

The Company is dependent on the present Officers. Should one or more of them cease to be affiliated with the Company before acceptable replacements are found, there could be an effect on the Company’s business and prospects.

Limited Transferability of Shares

No public market for Shares currently exists. Prospective Investors should be aware that neither the Company nor its affiliates are responsible for the resale of Shares. Moreover, no sales or transfers of Shares will be permitted, except upon the consent of the Company and upon the opinion of counsel satisfactory to the Company stating that such a transfer would not violate federal or state securities laws, which laws may impose suitability standards and other restrictions upon transferees. Buyout request require 30 days advance notification.
