Cloth Diapers

Sustainability practices are important to us. When and where we can, we limit single use products. Part of this eco conscious commitment is our cloth diapering program

A full-time diapered baby averages 5,000 to 8,000 diaper changes before the completion of potty training.

95% of American babies wear disposable diapers.

Paper pulp comprises 70% of disposable diapers.

The remaining 30% is made up of petroleum, which is a finite resource closely tied to escalating climate change.

Every year, 250,000 trees are required to produce diapers for American babies.

x 100,000

Disposable diapers are the third largest single consumer item in landfills.

In 1970, Americans discarded 350,000 tons of disposable diapers in landfills across the country.

x 100,000

By 2012, that number soared to a staggering 3,590,000 tons
