Sending money across borders today requires a series of intermediaries for both clearing and settlement, each adding time and cost to the process. With Trillion Blockchain Global Wiring Network, clearing and settlement with finality happens in near real-time. The solution uses digital assets to settle transactions — serving as an agreed-upon store of value exchanged between parties — as well as integrating payment instruction messages. It all means funds can now be transferred at a fraction of the cost and time of traditional correspondent banking.
