John Pahrenkrug, the De Luz miner who nearly lost his life by a mine cave-in a few weeks ago, has been in Fallbrook this week. He is recovering rapidly from his injuries. His partner, August Renter, the Santa Ana capitalist who puts up the money for the mining development, is still very badly crippled.

Some of the larger Fallbrook ranchers are still holding the bulk of their last year's hay crop. Johnson and Magee have a stock of nearly 300 tons piled up at De Luz station. They are shipping eight carloads of this hay this week.

A large acreage of grain is going in around Fallbrook. A good many farm-
