Have you seen any lost hunting dogs of late? There are two, each a famous lion-hunter, strayed or stolen, somewhere in the wild country adjacent to De Luz canyon. One of these dogs, named Keno, is the champion lion catcher of Arizona, from the Leo Brothers place, and the other, Done Gone, is a wildcat and lion champion from Texas, with some 400 cats to his credit. Both belong to Bill Batley, well known sportsman of Brawley, who had them on a lion hunt three weeks ago, when they disappeared after taking one lion. Lon Hewes, southern California's own cat and lion-catching champ, was with Batley on the hunt and is heart-broken that the valuable dogs should have been lost. Batley says he will pay anybody $50 apiece for Keno and Done Gone alive, or $25 dead.
