To Whom It May Concern:

The purpose of this letter is to provide a reference for Mr. Deven Berryhill. I have known Deven for four years, during which I had the privilege of working with him for three years.

Deven was Director of Marketing and Admissions at Calvary Chapel University while I served there in the role of Academic Dean. During that time I had the opportunity to work closely with him on a daily basis, observing up close how he conducted himself. Deven's professionalism is impeccable. He is punctual and hard working. He is consistent and productive- he gets things done, and well. He possesses excellent technology skills, coming from an aptitude he has applied over time. An especial gifting of Deven's is creative thinking. He has great ideas, is a natural initiator, and transfers these qualities into generating solid results. Another dimension that sets Deven apart is his high interpersonal intelligence. He is great with people! He collaborates productively with peers, and is an esteemed team member. He is self-assured, and projects warmth and approachability. This emanates from his genuine desire to serve others.

I know Deven as a talented professional who can be counted on to deliver results in critical, strategic positions within an organization. I grew personally and professionally by working alongside Deven Berryhill.

In my view, organizations would be most well served to add Deven to their ranks for positions requiring any combination of professionalism, creativity, technology, innovation, and/or working with people.

It is my pleasure to provide this highest reference for Deven Berryhill. If I may be of further assistance, please contact me as per the information below.

Sincerely,

David F. Salvatelli
