Start Seeds Indoors With an EGG CARTON GREENHOUSE

For your greenhouse, you need cardboard egg cartons, plastic wrap, garden soil and seeds.

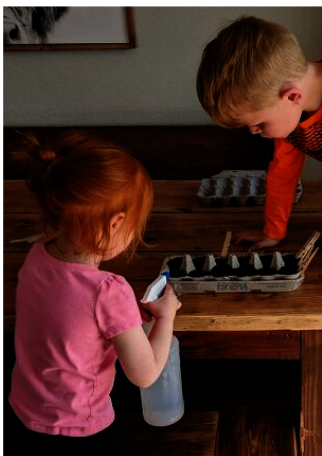

Like any planter, the egg carton greenhouse needs drainage. Poke holes in the bottom of each space in the egg carton.

Choose a good garden soil to give your seedlings the best possible start in life.

Sow your seeds according to the directions provided as far as depth of planting goes. The directions are usually found on the back of the seed pack.

Keeping your seeds wet as they germinate is your top priority as a gardener. Using a spray bottle to wet your soil will help from accidentally flooding your seeds.

Cover the egg cartons with plastic wrap and set them in a sunny location. Use your clips on the outside of the plastic to help hold it in place. Lift the plastic and mist the soil each day, or as needed.

When your seeds start to grow take them out of carton and put in your garden! Happy planting!
