The Committee is also mindful, however, of the danger which intelligence collection, and intelligence operations, may pose for a society grounded in democratic principles. The Preamble to our Constitution also declares that our government was created to “secure the blessings of liberty” and to “establish justice”. If domestic intelligence agencies ignore those principles, they may threaten the very values that form the foundation of our society. Similarly, if the government conducts foreign intelligence operations overseas which are inconsistent with our national ideals, our reputation, goals, and influence abroad may be undercut.

See the similarly radical sentiments of this website author in 2024-2026 to those expressed by this Senate Committee in 1976 relating history that dated from the 1920s and from their own year-long investigation at, for example, <https://banbrainhacks.org/congress-court-subversion>

Many agencies, departments or bureaus of the Federal Government have an intelligence function. Of these, the Committee spent the overwhelming preponderance of its energies on five:

The Federal Bureau of Investigation; The Central Intelligence Agency; The National Security Agency; The national intelligence components of the Defense Department (other than NSA); and The National Security Council and its component parts.⁵

The agencies upon which the Committee concentrated are those whose powers are so great and whose practices were so extensive that they must be understood in order fairly to judge whether the intelligence system of the United States needs reform and change.

Having selected the agencies to emphasize, the Committee also had to select representative programs and policies on which to concentrate. There were many more possible issues and allegations to investigate

Entrapment attempts; illegal human experiments; international intercepts of the author and CIA personnel and their targets which are classified but undoubtedly exist along with a LazerSoft Board member/NSA Director who went on to the CIA as Deputy Director; Colonel Austin and General Mattis, among others; and a Yarbrough fake family member from the early 1990s until 2005 who later served on the National Security Council, one of two brothers. So, the scope of the two reviews and forensic analysis is at least similar, though we do have more intelligence agencies now than we did in the 1970s – the same bad habits being noted either way.

A. Intelligence Activity: A New Form of Governmental Power to Impair Citizens' Rights

A tension between order and liberty is inevitable in any society. A Government must protect its citizens from those bent on engaging in violence and criminal behavior, or in espionage and other hostile foreign intelligence activity. Many of the intelligence programs reviewed in this report were established for those purposes. Intelligence work has, at times, successfully prevented dangerous and abhorrent acts, such as bombings and foreign spying, and aided in the prosecution of those responsible for such acts.

But, intelligence activity in the past decades has, all too often, exceeded the restraints on the exercise of governmental power which are imposed by our country's Constitution, laws, and traditions.

This continues to be an accurate statement in 2026, see <https://banbrainhacks.org/whats-new%2C-whats-next> for its personal impacts. More importantly, see <https://banbrainhacks.org/911-and-american-sedition> for its profound effects on our constitutional system and the American People, as all of us depend upon the federal government to “provide for the common defence” lawfully and in good faith. The uncontrolled corrosive effects of mismanagement of the “military-industrial complex” on democracy and our checks and balances, which World War II General elected President Eisenhower warned all of us about as he left office in 1961, have become clear despite a 25 year cover-up. See excerpts of Eisenhower’s warning at <https://banbrainhacks.org/war-power-and-limitations> which the Government intends to make of that information.

This Committee has examined a realm of governmental information collection which has not been governed by restraints comparable to those in criminal proceedings. We have examined the collection of intelligence about the political advocacy and actions and the private lives of American citizens. That information has been used covertly to discredit the ideas advocated and to “neutralize” the actions of their proponents. As Attorney General Harlan Fiske Stone warned in 1924, when he sought to keep federal agencies from investigating “political or other opinions” as opposed to “conduct . . . forbidden by the laws”:

When a police system passes beyond these limits, it is dangerous to the proper administration of justice and to human liberty, which it should be our first concern to cherish.

. . . There is always a possibility that a secret police may become a menace to free government and free institutions because it carries with it the possibility of abuses of power which are not always quickly apprehended or understood.’

Our investigation has confirmed that warning. We have seen segments of our Government, in their attitudes and action, adopt tactics unworthy of a democracy, and occasionally reminiscent of the tactics of totalitarian regimes. We have seen a consistent pattern in which

The pattern of intelligence agencies expanding the scope of their activities was well described by one witness, who in 1970 had coordinated an effort by most of the intelligence community to obtain authority to undertake more illegal domestic activity:

The risk was that you would get people who would be susceptible to political considerations as opposed to national security considerations, or would construe political considerations to be national security considerations, to move from the kid with a bomb to the kid with a picket sign, and from the kid with the picket sign to the kid with the bumper sticker of the opposing candidate. And you just keep going down the line.⁹

In 1940, Attorney General Robert Jackson saw the same risk. He recognized that using broad labels like “national security” or “subversion” to invoke the vast power of the government is dangerous because there are “no definite standards to determine what constitutes a ‘subversive activity’, such as we have for murder or larceny.” Jackson added:

Activities which seem benevolent or helpful to wage earners, persons on relief, or those who are disadvantaged in the struggle for existence may be regarded as ‘subversive’ by those whose property interests might be burdened thereby. Those who are in office are apt to regard as ‘subversive’ the activities of any of those who would bring about a change of administration. Some of our soundest constitutional doctrines were once punished as subversive. We must not forget that it was not so long ago that both the term ‘Republican’ and the term ‘Democrat’ were epithets with sinister meaning to denote persons of radical tendencies that were ‘subversive’ of the order of things then dominant.¹⁰

This wise warning was not heeded in the conduct of intelligence activity, where the “eternal vigilance” which is the “price of liberty” has been forgotten.

The modern use of ambiguous, amoral terms such as “national security” reflect an absence of values, which contrasts greatly with the vision of individual liberty and “the safety of the people of America,” expressed by those who founded our country at great personal risk and sacrifice 250 years ago, see <https://banbrainhacks.org/2026-declaration-year-250>

C. Summary of the Main Problems

The answer to each of these questions is disturbing. Too many people have been spied upon by too many Government agencies and too much information has been collected. The Government has often undertaken the secret surveillance of citizens on the basis of their political beliefs, even when those beliefs posed no threat of violence or illegal acts on behalf of a hostile foreign power. The Government, operating primarily through secret informants, but also using other intrusive techniques such as wiretaps, microphone “bugs”, surreptitious mail opening, and break-ins, has swept in vast amounts of information about the personal lives, views, and associations of American citizens. Investigations of groups deemed potentially dangerous—and even of groups suspected of associating with potentially dangerous organizations—have continued for decades, despite the fact that those groups did not engage in unlawful activity. Groups and individuals have been harassed and disrupted because of their political views and their lifestyles. Investigations have been based upon vague standards whose breadth made excessive collection inevitable. Unsavory and vicious tactics have been employed—including anonymous attempts to break up marriages, disrupt meetings, ostracize persons from their professions, and provoke target groups into rivalries that might result in deaths. Intelligence agencies have served the political and personal objectives of presidents and other high officials. While the agencies often committed excesses in response to pressure from high officials in the Executive branch and Congress, they also occasionally initiated improper activities and then concealed them from officials whom they had a duty to inform.

Governmental officials—including those whose principal duty is to enforce the law—have violated or ignored the law over long periods of time and have advocated and defended their right to break the law.

Modern internet based mass surveillance makes possible remote monitoring of individual households, churches, businesses, and other community-based organizations for politically sensitive trigger words, phrases, other speech, web searches, and online content and conduct with huge AI-monitored supercomputer systems. These behaviors, well within our unalienable rights of religion, speech, press, peaceable assembly, and petition (peaceful protest is such a behavior), can subject any of us to immediate reprisals, remotely imposed violence and other reactions for perceived violations of the then current politically or socially correct positions, as defined by an anonymous federal official. For example, see the October 12, 2026 incident report of a remote physical assault below:

The public humiliation runs to those in our federal government who use illegal systems to protect and defend themselves while hiding behind abuse of state secret privilege to accomplish thus kind of outcome.

The national embarrassment runs to those who enable and empower this kind of conduct funding, program authorization, and delegated "authority."

This follows recent dizzy woozy sessions when I normally shaved in the morning as they apparently prefer I appear for breakfast in the group shelter unshaven.

This conduct runs alongside the recent physical assault/fall which abraded my right elbow. It fits right into the federal intelligence version of "provide for the common defence" and "the safety of the people of America."

Add these recent incidents to the other 2026 incidents and assaults at <https://banbrainhacks.org/whats-new%2C-whats-next> Still more evidence of lawless federal police powers using billions of dollars of US taxpayer investments in the illegal bioweapon to further their desperate attempts to provoke lawless conduct by another. This conduct must be compared to the constitutional “establish justice” standard of conduct they have yet to achieve, just as was described in the 1976 Church Committee Final Report:

The Constitutional system of checks and balances has not adequately controlled intelligence activities. Until recently the Executive branch has neither delineated the scope of permissible activities nor established procedures for supervising intelligence agencies. Congress has failed to exercise sufficient oversight, seldom questioning the use to which its appropriations were being put. Most domestic intelligence issues have not reached the courts, and in those cases when they have reached the courts, the judiciary has been reluctant to grapple with them.

Reluctant? Obstinate or criminal are the more precise terms for the behavior of all three branches in light of the duration, perpetuation, and acceleration of illegal and unethical acts endured over the author’s 65 plus years of experience with illegal bioweapon program operations, to and including their homicide attempts which began in the 1980s, documented at <https://banbrainhacks.org/attempted-homicides>

As reported by the Church Committee and the years since described across this website, these acts have included destruction of marriages, thefts of personal and real property, employment discrimination, and other racketeering acts at the hands of the federal government, and numerous willful refusals to address the collision of criminal conduct with constitutional prohibitions such as the 13th Amendment prohibition of involuntary servitude and acts comprising involving servitude through legal and physical coercion. These criminal acts are emblematic of a much larger scope of illegal conduct by federal police powers – military, intelligence, and civilian - over the decades before, during, and since the 1976 Church Commission Final Report. They continue to be funded by our elected members of Congress.

1. The Number of People Affected by Domestic Intelligence Activity

United States intelligence agencies have investigated a vast number of American citizens and domestic organizations. FBI headquarters alone has developed over 500,000 domestic intelligence files,¹¹ and these have been augmented by additional files at FBI Field Offices. The FBI opened 65,000 of these domestic intelligence files in 1972 alone.¹² In fact, substantially more individuals and groups are subject to intelligence scrutiny than the number of files would appear to indicate, since typically, each domestic intelligence file contains information on more than one individual or group, and this information is readily retrievable through the FBI General Name Index.

The number of Americans and domestic groups caught in the domestic intelligence net is further illustrated by the following statistics:

—Nearly a quarter of a million first class letters were opened and photographed in the United States by the CIA between 1953–1973, producing a CIA computerized index of nearly one and one-half million names.¹³

—At least 130,000 first class letters were opened and photographed by the FBI between 1940–1966 in eight U.S. cities.¹⁴

—Some 300,000 individuals were indexed in a CIA computer system and separate files were created on approximately 7,200 Americans and over 100 domestic groups during the course of CIA's Operation CHAOS (1967–1973).¹⁵

—Millions of private telegrams sent from, to, or through the United States were obtained by the National Security Agency from 1947 to 1975 under a secret arrangement with three United States telegraph companies.¹⁶

—An estimated 100,000 Americans were the subjects of United States Army intelligence files created between the mid-1960's and 1971.¹⁷

—Intelligence files on more than 11,000 individuals and groups were created by the Internal Revenue Service between

One hundred million doses of LSD hallucinogenic drugs were administered, most secretly and anonymously without consent, by CIA and its contractors between 1953-1973 to Americans all over America. By comparison, the illegal bioweapon, active since late 1993 over the US, provides nearly perfect coverage of all 340 million of us. If elements of the federal government choose to target any individual, group, or organization – business, church, or community-based, they can do so remotely with complete stealth.

2. Too Much Information Is Collected For Too Long

Intelligence agencies have collected vast amounts of information about the intimate details of citizens' lives and about their participation in legal and peaceful political activities. The targets of intelligence activity have included political adherents of the right and the left, ranging from activist to casual supporters. Investigations have been directed against proponents of racial causes and women's rights, outspoken apostles of nonviolence and racial harmony; establishment politicians; religious groups; and advocates of new life styles. The widespread targeting of citizens and domestic groups, and the excessive scope of the collection of information, is illustrated by the following examples:

(a) The "Women's Liberation Movement" was infiltrated by informants who collected material about the movement's policies, leaders, and individual members. One report included the name of every woman who attended meetings,²⁰ and another stated that each woman at a meeting had described "how she felt oppressed, sexually or otherwise."²¹ Another report concluded that the movement's purpose was to "free women from the humdrum existence of being only a wife and mother", but still recommended that the intelligence investigation should be continued.²²

(b) A prominent civil rights leader and advisor to Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., was investigated on the suspicion that he might be a Communist "sympathizer". The FBI field office concluded he was not.²³ Bureau headquarters directed that the investigation continue—using a theory of "guilty until proven innocent:"

The Bureau does not agree with the expressed belief of the field office that _____²⁴ is not sympathetic to the Party cause. While there may not be any evidence that _____ is a Communist neither is there any substantial evidence that he is anti-Communist.²⁵

(c) FBI sources reported on the formation of the Conservative American Christian Action Council in 1971.²⁶ In the 1950's, the Bureau collected information about the John Birch Society and passed

No.

(f) As part of their effort to collect information which “related even remotely” to people or groups “active” in communities which had “the potential” for civil disorder, Army intelligence agencies took such steps as: sending agents to a Halloween party for elementary school children in Washington, D.C., because they suspected a local “dissident” might be present; monitoring protests of welfare mothers’ organizations in Milwaukee; infiltrating a coalition of church youth groups in Colorado; and sending agents to a priests’ conference in Washington, D.C., held to discuss birth control measures.³⁴

(g) In the late 1960’s and early 1970’s, student groups were subjected to intense scrutiny. In 1970 the FBI ordered investigations of every member of the Students for a Democratic Society and of “every Black Student Union and similar group regardless of their past or

3. Covert Action and the Use of Illegal or Improper Means

(a) Covert Action.—Apart from uncovering excesses in the collection of intelligence, our investigation has disclosed covert actions directed against Americans, and the use of illegal and improper surveillance techniques to gather information. For example:

(i) The FBI's COINTELPRO—counterintelligence program—was designed to “disrupt” groups and “neutralize” individuals deemed to be threats to domestic security. The FBI resorted to counterintelligence tactics in part because its chief officials believed that the existing law could not control the activities of certain dissident groups, and that court decisions had tied the hands of the intelligence community. Whatever opinion one holds about the policies of the targeted groups, many of the tactics employed by the FBI were indisputably degrading to a free society. COINTELPRO tactics included:

—Anonymously attacking the political beliefs of targets in order to induce their employers to fire them;

—Anonymously mailing letters to the spouses of intelligence targets for the purpose of destroying their marriages;⁵⁷

—Obtaining from IRS the tax returns of a target and then attempting to provoke an IRS investigation for the express purpose of deterring a protest leader from attending the Democratic National Convention;⁵⁸

—Falsely and anonymously labeling as Government informants members of groups known to be violent, thereby exposing the falsely labelled member to expulsion or physical attack;⁵⁹

—Pursuant to instructions to use “misinformation” to disrupt demonstrations, employing such means as broadcasting fake orders on the same citizens band radio frequency used by demonstration marshalls to attempt to control demonstrations,⁶⁰ and duplicating and falsely filling out forms soliciting housing for persons coming to a demonstration, thereby causing “long and useless journeys to locate these addresses”;⁶¹

These same tactics persist from the 1960s into the 2020s, see <https://banbrainhacks.org/government-as-god%3F> and <https://banbrainhacks.org/whats-new%2C-whats-next>

Church Committee – Book 2: US Intelligence Operations And Rights Of Americans - Selected Excerpts Published 1976
200th Anniversary Of The Declaration Of Independence

(b) Illegal or Improper Means.—The surveillance which we investigated was not only vastly excessive in breadth and a basis for degrading counterintelligence actions, but was also often conducted by illegal or improper means. For example:

(1) For approximately 20 years the CIA carried out a program of indiscriminately opening citizens' first class mail. The Bureau also had a mail opening program, but cancelled it in 1966. The Bureau continued, however, to receive the illegal fruits of CIA's program. In 1970, the heads of both agencies signed a document for President Nixon, which correctly stated that mail opening was illegal, falsely stated that it had been discontinued, and proposed that the illegal opening of mail should be resumed because it would provide useful results. The President approved the program, but withdrew his approval five days later. The illegal opening continued nonetheless. Throughout this period CIA officials knew that mail opening was illegal, but expressed concern about the "flap potential" of exposure, not about the illegality of their activity.⁷¹

(2) From 1947 until May 1975, NSA received from international cable companies millions of cables which had been sent by American citizens in the reasonable expectation that they would be kept private.⁷²

(3) Since the early 1930's, intelligence agencies have frequently wiretapped and bugged American citizens without the benefit of judicial warrant. Recent court decisions have curtailed the use of these techniques against domestic targets. But past subjects of these surveillances have included a United States Congressman, a Congressional staff member, journalists and newsmen, and numerous individuals and groups who engaged in no criminal activity and who posed no genuine threat to the national security, such as two White House domestic affairs advisers and an anti-Vietnam War protest group. While the prior written approval of the Attorney General has been required for all warrantless wiretaps since 1940, the record is replete with instances where this requirement was ignored and the Attorney General gave only after-the-fact authorization.

Until 1965, wiretapping surveillance by intelligence agen-

Today, we are tracked by the mass surveillance enabled internet connected local devices through customer paid subscriptions for cable, streaming services, cell phones, and the like. The internet itself, of course, began with DOD DARPA funded research contracts.

Americans - Selected Excerpts Published 1976

(5) Warrantless break-ins have been conducted by intelligence agencies since World War II. During the 1960's alone, the FBI and CIA conducted hundreds of break-ins, many against American citizens and domestic organizations. In some cases, these break-ins were to install microphones; in other cases, they were to steal such items as membership lists from organizations considered "subversive" by the Bureau.⁷⁵

(6) The most pervasive surveillance technique has been the informant. In a random sample of domestic intelligence cases, 83% involved informants and 5% involved electronic surveillance.⁷⁶ Informants have been used against peaceful, law-abiding groups; they have collected information about personal and political views and activities.⁷⁷ To maintain their credentials in violence-prone groups, informants have involved themselves in violent activity. This phenomenon is well illustrated by an informant in the Klan. He was present at the murder of a civil rights worker in Mississippi and subsequently helped to solve the crime and convict the perpetrators. Earlier, however, while performing duties paid for by the Government, he had previously "beaten people severely, had boarded buses and kicked people, had [gone] into restaurants and beaten them [blacks] with blackjacks, chains, pistols."⁷⁸ Although the FBI requires agents to instruct informants that they cannot be involved in violence, it was understood that in the Klan, "he couldn't be an angel and be a good informant."⁷⁹

4. Ignoring the Law

Officials of the intelligence agencies occasionally recognized that certain activities were illegal, but expressed concern only for "flap potential." Even more disturbing was the frequent testimony that the law, and the Constitution were simply ignored. For example, the

200th Anniversary Of The Declaration Of Independence

b. Deficiencies in Accountability and Control

The overwhelming number of excesses continuing over a prolonged period of time were due in large measure to the fact that the system of checks and balances—created in our Constitution to limit abuse of Governmental power—was seldom applied to the intelligence community. Guidance and regulation from outside the intelligence agencies—where it has been imposed at all—has been vague. Presidents and other senior Executive officials, particularly the Attorneys General, have virtually abdicated their Constitutional responsibility to oversee and set standards for intelligence activity. Senior government officials generally gave the agencies broad, general mandates or pressed for immediate results on pressing problems. In neither case did they provide guidance to prevent excesses and their broad mandates and pressures themselves often resulted in excessive or improper intelligence activity.

Congress has often declined to exercise meaningful oversight, and on occasion has passed laws or made statements which were taken by intelligence agencies as supporting overly-broad investigations.

The duration of this specific program began in the 1950s with violations of our Constitution and laws. No changes noted through today in this illegal program.

6. The Adverse Impact of Improper Intelligence Activity

Many of the illegal or improper disruptive efforts directed against American citizens and domestic organizations succeeded in injuring their targets. Although it is sometimes difficult to prove that a target's misfortunes were caused by a counter-intelligence program directed against him, the possibility that an arm of the United States Government intended to cause the harm and might have been responsible is itself abhorrent.

The Committee has observed numerous examples of the impact of intelligence operations. Sometimes the harm was readily apparent—destruction of marriages, loss of friends or jobs. Sometimes the attitudes of the public and of Government officials responsible for formulating policy and resolving vital issues were influenced by distorted intelligence. But the most basic harm was to the values of privacy

See <https://banbrainhacks.org/government-as-god%3F> for personal and families impacts summary. We do not know the full scope of the past 30 plus years of such intrusions by our federal government into our own lives and those of others in other places.

Church Committee – Book 2: US Intelligence Operations And Rights Of Americans - Selected Excerpts Published 1976
200th Anniversary Of The Declaration Of Independence

7. Cost and Value

Domestic intelligence is expensive. We have already indicated the cost of illegal and improper intelligence activities in terms of the harm to victims, the injury to constitutional values, and the damage to the democratic process itself. The cost in dollars is also significant. For example, the FBI has budgeted for fiscal year 1976 over $7 million for its domestic security informant program, more than twice the amount it spends on informants against organized crime.¹⁰³ The aggregate budget for FBI domestic security intelligence and foreign counterintelligence is at least $80 million.¹⁰⁴ In the late 1960s and early 1970s, when the Bureau was joined by the CIA, the military, and NSA in collecting information about the anti-war movement and black activists, the cost was substantially greater.

Apart from the excesses described above, the usefulness of many domestic intelligence activities in serving the legitimate goal of protecting society has been questionable. Properly directed intelligence investigations concentrating upon hostile foreign agents and violent terrorists can produce valuable results. The Committee has examined cases where the FBI uncovered "illegal" agents of a foreign power engaged in clandestine intelligence activities in violation of federal law. Information leading to the prevention of serious violence has been acquired by the FBI through its informant penetration of terrorist groups and through the inclusion in Bureau files of the names of persons actively involved with such groups.¹⁰⁵ Nevertheless, the most sweeping domestic intelligence surveillance programs have produced surprisingly few useful returns in view of their extent. For example:

We do not know how many billions of dollars have been borrowed from future generations to spy upon, harass, and destroy Americans of the current generations. This pattern has persisted from the 1956-1971 DOJ/FBI Cointelpro and 1953-1973 CIA/Army MKUltra, among other illegal programs. Technology and stealth have improved, compliance with our Constiution and laws has arguably declined, see C. How – By Exploiting An Emeny Attack at <https://banbrainhacks.org/911-conflicted-characters> —Domestic intelligence reports have sometimes even been counter-productive. A local police chief, for example, described FBI reports which led to the positioning of federal troops near his city as:

. . . almost completely composed of unsorted and unevaluated stories, threats, and rumors that had crossed my desk in New Haven. Many of these had long before been discounted by our Intelligence Division. But they had made their way from New Haven to Washington, had gained completely unwarranted credibility, and had been submitted by the Director of the FBI to the President of the United States. They seemed to present a convincing picture of impending holocaust.¹¹⁰

Church Committee – Book 2: US Intelligence Operations And Rights Of Americans - Selected Excerpts Published 1976 200th Anniversary Of The Declaration Of Independence

To resolve this problem as they perceived it, a former CIA DDO (head of international spying) was placed in charge of NYPD's newly formed intelligence division. The former DDO promptly directed this unit to break laws and the First Amendment by, among other things, spying on and in churches in America. CIA also embedded its covert agents in highly responsible management positions within NYPD. Senior CIA officials have long known of the behavioral shaping capabilities of both operational driving campaigns to shape anti-American attitudes and the illegal bioweapon, see <https://banbrainhacks.org/brain-hacks-explained> This personnel component of federal intelligence operations also resulted in the cycle of activities at Seattle Station while the author was living there, see <https://banbrainhacks.org/government-as-god%3F> for examples.

II. THE GROWTH OF DOMESTIC INTELLIGENCE: 1936 TO 1976

A. SUMMARY

1. The Lesson: History Repeats Itself

During and after the First World War, intelligence agencies, including the predecessor of the FBI, engaged in repressive activity.¹ A new Attorney General, Harlan Fiske Stone, sought to stop the investigation of "political or other opinions."² This restraint was embodied only in an executive pronouncement, however. No statutes were passed to prevent the kind of improper activity which had been exposed. Thereafter, as this narrative will show, the abuses returned in a new form. It is now the responsibility of all three branches of government to ensure that the pattern of abuse of domestic intelligence activity does not recur.

2. The Pattern: Broadening Through Time

Since the re-establishment of federal domestic intelligence programs in 1936, there has been a steady increase in the government's capability and willingness to pry into, and even disrupt, the political activities and personal lives of the people. The last forty years have witnessed a relentless expansion of domestic intelligence activity beyond investigation of criminal conduct toward the collection of political intelligence and the launching of secret offensive actions against Americans.

It's now 2026 – 250 years on from the 1776 Declaration of the fight to free Americans from the tyranny and oppression of a King and his central government, not 1976 – 200 years on - when this Church Committee Final Report was presented to the American public. This website illustrates clearly what has changed in the meantime among federal police powers agencies engaged in illegal intelligence operations – the technology and stealth have improved, their toolset is more intrusive than ever. Manufacturing outcomes using the illegal Government As God bioweapon is now possible on a mass scale – groups or populations - without ever going near the targeted individual, group, or population, see C. As for government compliance with and oversight of the legal reforms enacted as a result of the 1976 Church Committee Final Report - This website answers that question across many domains of American life. These illegal operations have been and are conducted by the agencies which perform domestic federal intelligence and, at times, through their collaborations with foreign intelligence services. The one remaining thing we don't know is the names of the others. The scale is undoubtedly comparable to what was documented in the Church Committee report – in the millions. And there are about 100 million more of us today than in 1976.

As for me, I did not merely unwittingly work in Seattle Station, I lived there from the 1960s until December 23, 2005. Our neighborhoods were filled with connected people beginning in the 1960s. Their cover residences were adjacent, across the street, and nearby. There was frequent work-related travel to projects in other US states, and occasionally, allied country locations. In 2005, it was on to Boston and New York for other kinds of “work” which is described across this website.

Work which has not set me free, by the way. As for the millions of others who found or do find themselves in similar circumstances, it's up to all of us. Congress and Presidents have overseen these same failures the last 50 years running. It is time to help them out.....

A constitutional amendment may be needed so the compliance mandates described there are not subject to some future stealth maneuver by Congress to again destroy the unalienable rights of We, the People and our posterity. It is after all, We, the Taxpayers, present and future, who have and will pay for these egregious behaviors with our lives and treasure, and who have lost loved ones in the process. The politicians and senior government executives who sit in the conference rooms and situation rooms are not those who bear the burden – that happens in the field – be it in our neighborhoods, churches, private businesses, or some foreign land.
