Dennis,

I have received your email. However, please allow me to reiterate what we discussed when you called earlier that this is not a substitute for service and we cannot accept service via email. Our office will need to be served in accordance with the Civil Rules of Civil Procedure. If you have questions, you should contact the civil clerk for the District Court of the District of Columbia.

Best,

Subject: DC District EMERGENCY REQUEST for Injunctive Relief and Complaint

Good day - Thanks, Chrytsal for providing your email for this correspondence. I am providing electronic copies of the Complaint and Summons' which I have electronically sent to the DC District Court today.

A delivery service was to have attempted physical delivery to the Court Clerk this morning. On checking with the Clerk's office within the last hour, I learned via voice mail that there was apparently no one available to accept service and an email address was provided for intake. So, I filed with the Court using the Intake email address. This is a pro se, in forma pauperis Complaint involving national security and counter-terrorism misconduct by the United States.

I am available to conference as needed via telephone at 201-887-6541.

Thank you.

Regards,
Dennis

Hi Mr. Brewer,
Here are the documents you requested. I've also attached your receipt.
Have a nice day!
Tony.

I don't have any legal obligations to you. I have an art project that I need my supplies for —

I'm not testifying on your behalf.

I don't even know who you are —

Stop sending me messages that have nothing to do with what we discussed.

No need to respond.
