The DJIC Total Christian

PALM SUNDAY CELEBRATION

by Elder Ericka Adams, Director for Music & Arts

In preparation for one of the most anticipated worship events of the Christian calendar the DJICC ministry of Music & Arts produced an amazing musical presentation. of instrumental, liturgical, vocal and visual arts to signify the very presence of the Resurrection/Easter season. Palm Sunday's presentation: "He Reigns" displayed the life, death and resurrection glory of our Savior, led by the staple question; "Did Mary know...?" "The liturgical team along with the psalmist artistry of Sis Wincey Terry Bryant and the Voices of Deliverance brought life to the very presence of the crucifixion scene dramatically portrayed by our young people in collaboration with the mesmerizing ministry of our DJICC liturgical dance ministry. The awe spelling momentum was highlighted by the finale that included the visual of the crucifixion, and death and the instrumental depth of our band directed by Brother Corey Givens. To God be the Glory for the Passion of the people for our Savior Christ Jesus..."Mary did you know that your baby boy would one day..."

The facilitators are our Overseer Vanessa Everett and Pastor Shirley Graham in one track. A second track will feature Bishop James Everett and Bishop Rudy Carlton.

In our first event on April 6th, Coach Caryl Lucas shared about Relationship Building and Dr. Alex Ellis ministered on Leadership Development.

“Financial Planning,...she mastered that”

Olivia Bacote

A year ago I walked across the stage and graduated with a Master's of Science degree in Financial Planning.

I had finally made the decision to go back to school because the “perfect time” I had been waiting for seemed like it would never come. I had been struggling at work because the better I was doing at my job, the more work I was receiving, and this quickly became a never ending cycle. There were days I'd walk into the midtown office at 7 am and didn't leave until 11 pm. I was a team of 1, trying to get everything done (and trying to do it well).

I knew I was good at my job because I was achieving results, receiving positive feedback from my direct supervisor, as well as from others throughout the company, and had even developed a good rapport with individuals I worked with externally. As I rose to challenges and continued experiencing success in my role, I began having conversations with my boss about my position and advancement. In these conversations, I again received positive feedback which supported my cause as to my advancement at the company, but ended in my being given a bunch of non work related reasons as to why I couldn't get a raise and didn't “deserve” a promotion.

This went on for a number of years and as the cycle continued, I was slowly beginning to burn out. I had begun stress eating and gained a bunch of weight, I was experiencing daily headaches and my anxiety was through the roof. I had gone on interviews but was very disheartened in this process because I was either not hearing back from positions that I liked, or having bad interview experiences. After a few months of dedicated interviews, I had started to feel like I was going to be stuck in that position forever and it really started weighing on me. I wondered if I should just quit without another position lined up and just see what happens because the stress had begun making me sick. I ended up losing my appetite and just having an overall rough time getting through the day, so I really began praying.

A couple of months later as I listened to Tasha Cobbs sing the words, “You know my name”, I immediately wanted to cry. I was sitting in my car after leaving my new job for the evening and was thinking back on all that I had been through in my last position, and how desperate I felt in those moments for a change to take place. I remembered the mornings I had to force myself out of the bed to go to work, and the days I went out feeling like nothing mattered and like I didn't care anymore. I remembered everything I had struggled with because through it all, he knew my name. He was walking with me and preparing me for a blessing. I not only received a promotion, and a raise, he also blessed me with the shopping spree that I wanted so I could walk out in style.

A VERY HAPPY MOTHER'S DAY TO EVERYONE WHO HAS EVER FILLED THE ROLE OF MOTHER FOR ANYONE

LIFE AT THE HIGH

AMAYA JACOBS

Hi, I'm Amaya. I'm currently at the end of my Sophomore year in High school. This year has been a disaster for me. So much drama, teen pregnancies, and gun violence. It is just too much for me, I can't wait until I graduate.

I remember my freshmen year when I first came to Irvington High. I didn't know anyone. I wanted to leave my first day when I saw boys selling drugs in stairwell 9. That's where there are no cameras so you can do whatever you want. Students skip there all the time and never get caught. There are even fights that take place in the 9 sometimes.

My first fight at the High was freshmen year. I'll never forget it. I fought my ex-friend over something so silly. She was a big girl too. It's always the big girls that want to pick on me because I'm little. My momma didn't raise no punk, I'm letting you know that right now. The sad part about it is, the people I called my friends back then were the ones who gassed us to fight.

I'm so glad that I have no relationship with them anymore. They're not even on my level. They have no respect for themselves as women (but that's the case with most of the girls at Irvington High). One of them is actually 3 months pregnant. She and I were so close. I called her my big sister until she let others put bugs in her ear. They told her I wanted her boyfriend. He really wanted me, if you want to know the truth. Now they are both dropouts and soon to be parents. I just don't understand how you can be young and pregnant. At least graduate high school and college. At least have a good job and get stable in a good environment. That's why I am only focused on my schooling and God. Although my grades are not perfect, I know that all it takes is a little studying and prayer. Even when the devils try to take advantage of you. All you have to do is pray and God will have your back, I promise.

Now, I can't say this school year was the worst, but it certainly wasn't the best. I lost a very close friend to gun violence that I knew since the 1st grade. School has not been the same since Marquise passed. I haven't been as happy as I was before. To be honest, none of my friends have been. Marquise always had a happy spirit. He made others happy. I realized my friends haven't been the same. Some of them are associated with gangs and now they are selling drugs. It's like they got worse than they were before. Everything changed when Marquise passed.

I don't even walk home anymore. I take the bus because I'm afraid something might happen to me next. I'm just hurt. My friend didn't get a chance to finish his life. He actually had something going for himself. He got good grades in school and he was always in class. Marquise even had a little talent in him. He was really turning his life around. He didn't gang bang or anything. It still feels so unreal. That's why I pray and ask God to look over all my loved ones and keep them covered under the precious blood of Jesus.

These are some of the things I have experienced since I've been going to Irvington High. I still have to deal with the annoying teachers and classmates and school is boring now that we've lost Marquise. I try not to think about him too much. Right now, I'm just focused on school, graduating, and making it out for Marquise. ▲

You can accept Jesus as Lord and Savior.

Dear God

I admit I am a sinner and need your forgiveness; I believe that Jesus Christ died in my place paying the penalty for my sins. I am willing right now to turn from my sin and accept Jesus Christ as my personal Saviour and Lord. I commit myself to you and ask you to send the Holy Spirit into my life, to fill me and take control, and to help me become the kind of person you want me to be. Thank you Father for loving me. In Jesus' name.

Amen

We serve a GOD that is able to do what no one on earth can do. There are things that occur naturally without human intervention. But, our GOD can do things that will occur that we can not explain! These things we call supernatural.
