BIO:

Shaun Paul Piccinino (Peach-a-nino) is an award winning Film and Television Director who currently has 6 feature films on Netflix with 3 of them reaching the Top 3 most watched movies in the world for the platform. "A California Christmas" and "A California Christmas: City Lights" both hit the top of the charts at number 1 and number 2 respectively (worldwide) for over 2 weeks in December of 2020 and 2021. Piccinino's latest Netflix hit, "That's Amor" reached the number 3 position in the world and remained in the top ten for 14 days straight. Shaun's 3 global hits garnered over 250 million watched hours on the streaming giant.

In 2022 the Piccinino directed movie, "Holiday Harmony" starring Brooke Shields jumped up the charts for HBOMax and stayed in the Top 10 globaly for over 4 weeks in a row. Grabbing the number 2 spot at it's height.

Piccinino's latest film release, "The Island" also hit the top of the charts, at the coveted number 1 spot, for the Starz streaming platform. The film stars Michael Jai White and Jackson Rathbone for Saban Films. This marks the 5th chart topping movie for Shaun.

Over the past 6 years Shaun has directed 10 feature films and 2 television series (directing on multiple episodes each series). His projects have been distributed by Netflix, HBO, Warner Brothers, Lionsgate, Amazon Prime, Crackle, Tubi and more. Shaun is also known for his extensive experience in action/stunts and visual effects. Earlier achievements include the hit television series "Deadliest Warrior", directing, stunt coordinating and also portraying Scottish hero William Wallace, the "Call of Duty" Franchise, Spider-Man: Web of Shadows, Robot Chicken, Star Wars Specials (editing and visual effects) and The Lackey (an award winning feature film made for a meager $7,200).

Piccinino has been pursuing his passion of entertaining through the lens of a true fan of movies and film making. Since his move to Los Angeles from Northern California in 2001, he has worked in every aspect of the business from acting, editing, visual effects, script writing, stunts, producing and of course directing.

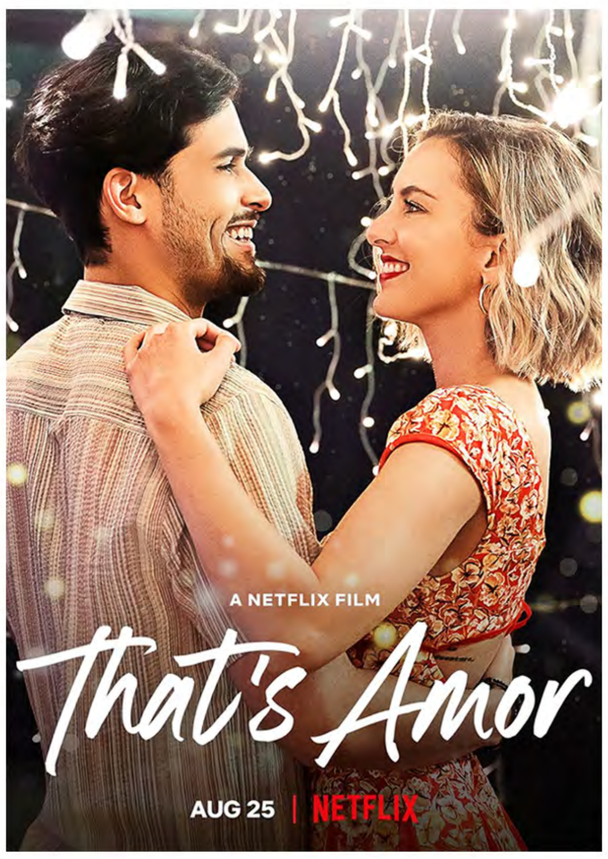

His training began early in life on stage as he was classically trained by his father, Barry Piccinino, a renowned drama professor and stage director in his own right. With a gift for creativity and a thirst to entertain others, Shaun has developed a solid reputation for creativity, sincerity, and staying on budget. Shaun utilizes the time he has on set efficiently to achieve the best version of any project.

WORKING WITH Shaun

JACKSON RATHBONE

(Twilight Franchise, The Last Ship)

"In the two decades I've worked in the film industry, I've learned that a film's energy comes from the director. Working with Shaun, that energy was consistently pleasant, fun, and collaborative. He is one of those rare types that is able to be artistic and commercial, professional and approachable. Shaun is the real deal. With him at the helm, your film is in safe, capable, and effective hands."

-Jackson Rathbone

GILLIAN WHITE

(The Oval, Days Of Our Lives)

"Being the female lead in the action drama The Island, I truly saw first hand that Shaun Piccinino is a wonderful director...talented, professional, caring and attentive to an actor's process on set as well as having a wide array of knowledge in the action and the stunt world."

-Actor/Producer Gillian White

SEAN PATRICK FLANERY

(Boondock Saints, Powder)

"Of the top 2 directors on my "favorites" list... Shaun Piccinino is both of them. And, of the 4 criteria used to determine my list (technical, creative, collaborative and just being a f#cking joy to work with), only Piccinino checks every box. Seriously I would do a web only Flex-Seal commercial with this guy"

-Sean Patrick Flanery

CHRISTINA MOORE

"Shaun Piccinino is a bright light; his energy on set keeps the cast and crew inspired while making the days fun and enjoyable. Shaun's nickname is the "energizer bunny." His boundless energy truly is a sight to behold and absoluetly pushes the team to do their best work while making the days fly by."

-Christina Moore

CASPER VAN DIEN

(Starhip Troopers, Sleepy Hallow)

"I have worked with Shaun on several projects over the years and he is such a pleasure to work with. I'm always looking to do more films with him and have his number on Speed-Dial. That's how much I love working with this guy."

-Casper Van Dien

PETER SHINKODA

(Netflix Daredevil, Falling Skies)

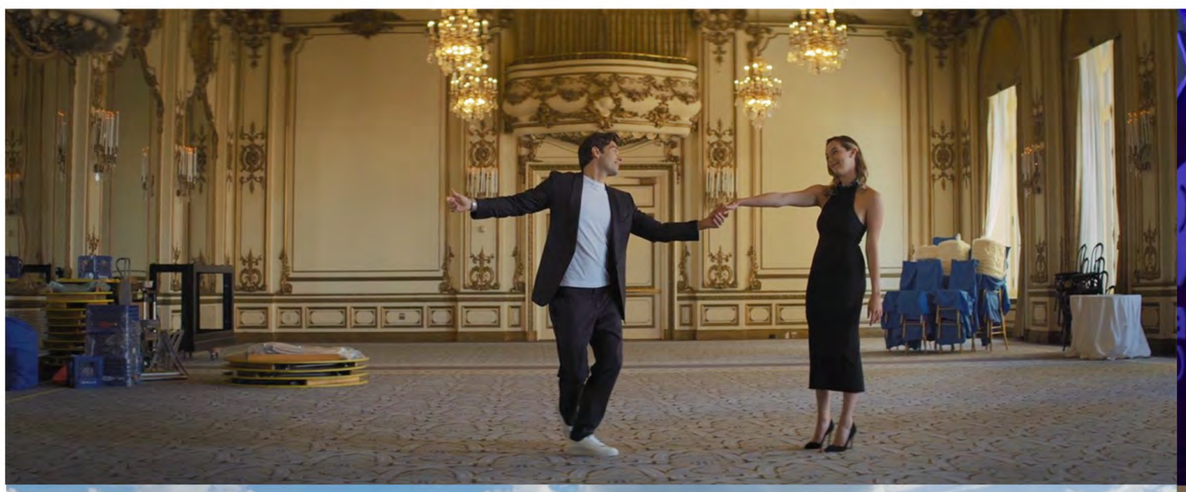

"Shaun began as an actor and a stuntman and therefore has great fundamental communication skills with performers, and that has served him well in terms of directing of all genres. Just take a look at his anthology of work. I very much enjoyed working with him and definitely would again, and I am constanly looking forward to future collaborations!"
