To Whom It May Concern:

Re: Jeremy Miller

I am writing this letter of recommendation for Jeremy Miller who was a student-athlete at the University of Michigan from 1997-2001. He graduated with a Bachelor of Arts Degree and he was a three-year letter winner as a member of the Michigan football team. Jeremy was a non-scholarship player when he arrived to try out for the long-snapper position on our special teams (extra-point, field goal and punt). After evaluating him, I was convinced he had no future in our program. He was not strong enough or big enough and he did not run well enough. He was, however, a very hard worker and very smart; he was also extremely committed and confident. In addition he had a wonderful sense of humor and he was very enthusiastic.

To my great surprise (and delight), Jeremy Miller developed into one of the great success stories in my 28-year coaching career at Michigan. Through sheer determination and effort, he improved his strength, his athleticism and his skills as a snapper; and in the process, he earned and was awarded a football scholarship. By the end of his career, he had become one of the best players at his position that I have coached.

He handled the pressure of his responsibility in a remarkable way. Jeremy is a man of excellent character and integrity. He communicates extremely well and he understands the importance of collaboration, cooperation and teamwork. I have great respect and admiration for Jeremy and I recommend him without reservation.

If I can be of further assistance, don't hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,

Lloyd H. Carr
Associate Athletic Director
Former Head Coach Michigan Football
