

ACWW

Rural Women in Action

History

- Founded in 1929, out of a committee of the International Council of Women.
- “To stimulate interest in the international aspects of rural life and development,” “to work together for the betterment of rural homes and communities...” and “to further international relations”

Rural Community Development

Alongside Core Projects which respond to local priorities, we work with strategic partners to add Capacity Building modules to each project, strengthening impact and building sustainability.

Current Projects

- Climate Smart Agriculture
 - Women's Organisation for Rural Development – Tamil Nadu, India
- Rural Women's Health
 - Empowerment for Marginalized Communities (EMAC) – Tanzania
- Education and Community Development
 - Reaching the Unreached Tanzania (RUT) – Dodoma, Tanzania

Climate Smart Agriculture

Women's Organisation for Rural Development

- Reach 50 Dalit women living across five villages in Namakkal District, Tamil Nadu
- Participants attend training in sustainable horticulture methods utilising indigenous crops and a field farmer programme

Climate Smart Agriculture

Women's Organisation for Rural Development

- Land access, field demonstrations, organic farm inputs are all acquired throughout this project.
- Seeds collections to develop an indigenous seed bank

Rural Women's Health

Empowerment for Marginalised Communities (EMAC) - Tanzania

- To reduce the prevalence of female genital mutilation (FGM) and improve access to sexual and reproductive health and rights
- Educate and train community health workers and local stakeholders

Education and Community Development

Reaching the Unreached (RUT) - Tanzania

- This project addresses the challenge of school dropouts due to adolescent pregnancy and truancy in Kondoa district.
- Aims to facilitate the re-entry of these girls into the education system and provide alternative pathways, including vocational education and skills training
