

She Slept with Her Husband's Cousin

Dear Coffie House,

I am a mother of four with a husband that hasn't treated me well over the years. First of all he doesn't have a full time job and is on disability. He had an accident a while back and can still work but only part time.

We moved from one state to another where his family lives and although it has been a big transition, I am dealing with it. I was able to find work over the years but it is frustrating that I feel like I am doing it all by myself. We have moved into three houses so far due to not being able to pay rent or the landlord being an ass. Our lights have been cut off more than once and it stresses me out.

How I met my husband's cousin is when he came over to smoke and drink with us. At first I wouldn't say too much and just let them talk. But then he would come over when my husband was at work, and we would smoke together. When my girlfriends would drop by he tried to talk to one but she turned him down. All of this was harmless until the cousin saw how my husband wasn't helping like he could. We end up hanging out by going to the park and over my friend's house. This is when we decided to get a hotel room and became intimate.

This affair lasted for months to the point where I feel like my husband knows but is just waiting on me to say it. One time when we needed some money for our bills the cousin came through and gave money, which pissed my husband off. Long story short, the cousin ends up dying from cancer long after we ended our affair. I was so upset and crying all the time, but had to hide it because of my husband. Now I want to know should I just come clean with my husband or not?

Sincerely,

Lost Wife