

Supporting stray, abandoned, neglected, and injured companion animals in Oceana County since 2011

Ben (top – before and after) and Oakly (bottom – before and after) are two of the most heartwarming stories in LASSI’s history. Both came to the shelter with severe skin issues, and Ben was underweight with open sores on his pelvic bones. Oakly’s skin itched so badly that he constantly rubbed his head on anything he could reach.

Because of the great generosity of LASSI donors like you, we were able to provide Ben and Oakly with all the care they needed. The terrific Oceana County veterinarians who work with LASSI did their magic and look at Ben and Oakly now!

Ben’s hair has mostly grown back, he’s at a good weight, and he’s able to do his job of exploring the exercise area. He’s a hard worker as you can see from his expression. Oakly loves to play, walk along the trail, and best of all, has no itchy skin!!!!

Savannah

Beautiful Savannah received a sad diagnosis of heartworms immediately upon arrival at the shelter. While heartworms are treatable, the care is too expensive for most adoptive families to consider. This is where LASSI's donors help the most – emergency and critical veterinary care. LASSI covered the nearly $1,200 treatment that Savannah received to rid her of heartworms and she was soon on the way to her forever home.

Calling New Shelter Volunteers!

Looking for a fun and rewarding way to get some exercise? We have just the opportunity for you! LASSI and the shelter staff could really use your help, even if you don't have much extra time in your schedule.

Providing the shelter dogs with walks and time in the play area is vital to keeping them happy and socialized as they await their forever homes. Having extra volunteers is extremely helpful, especially when the shelter is full.
