Artist and Educator

Emily is a Tucson native who didn't realize how much she loves beautiful Arizona until being gone way too long. After undergraduate studies at Rice University (abroad one semester at the University de Chile, Santiago, one in Costa Rica) in Houston, Texas and swimming for their Division One Team, she spent time gathering perspective and seeing the world by sampling Central & Eastern Europe and Central America. After living the ski bum dream in Crested Butte, CO while working as a high school dorm parent, and summer staff at the Rocky Mountain Biological Laboratory for many years, she returned to Tucson for graduate school at University of Arizona. With a firm and inspired educational philosophy, she joined Tanque Verde Schools teaching Spanish and Educational Technology; then into professional development for Pima County Schools Superintendent's Office as a Technology Integration Specialist and teacher-trainer. Though certified in CTE (Career & Technical Education) to teach welding, she instead spent her last few years in TUSD and Sunnyside as a technology coach for teachers, librarian and student tech team coordinator.
