Combining the works of oil painter Sophie Maloney & screen printer Sue Barnes, The Old Shop Pop-Up Gallery presents an exhibition of the contrast between town & country: city & seascapes. Both artists exhibit regularly at the 'Summer at the Beach' festival which is held at Waterbeach Barracks every August. Sue Barnes's screen prints are inspired by architecture, exploring the negative space that is created by buildings as well as their design and dramatic lines. In contrast, Sophie Maloney works mostly with oil on canvas, creating land and seascapes inspired by the historic competition between the water and land in the Fens.
