

Charlie Kirk Tribute Ballad

Charlie Kirk: Pioneer, Archagos, and Martyr

(Verse 1) Raised in the Chicago suburbs, heard a calling from God. He started young with a vision, standing on the Word. He saw beyond the politics, the numbers and the fray. Talking 'bout faith and family, walking out the way. He aimed to lift up children, needing dads at home. Built TPUSA into a force, where the youth could roam. A pioneering spirit, archagos was the name. He was a joyful warrior, playing the nation's game.

(Chorus) He was a pioneer, an archagos in the fight. With fierce courage, sharing Jesus as the light. They tried to silence him with a bullet's hateful sound, But his voice will echo, resounding all around. This movement will not be silenced, hear the Turning Point cry. We are all Charlie Kirk now, the torch held up high.

(Verse 2) On college campuses, he walked onto the floor. Said "Prove Me Wrong, bring your challenge, ask for more". He gave the dissenters the microphone, showing dignity and grace. Engaging civil discourse, fighting for the sacred space. At Utah Valley University, the end came too soon. He was talking truth, beneath the afternoon sun. His friend saw him go, looking right to eternity. Now he is present with the Lord, perfectly free.

(Chorus) He was a pioneer, an archagos in the fight. With fierce courage, sharing Jesus as the light. They tried to silence him with a bullet's hateful sound, But his voice will echo, resounding all around. This movement will not be silenced, hear the Turning Point cry. We are all Charlie Kirk now, the torch held up high.

(Bridge) From South Korea to London, the global heartbreak spreads. Anger turns to purpose, we rise from shattered embers. His wife, Erica, leads now, a saint with a lion's courage and a prayer. She chose forgiveness for the killer, the young man Charlie wanted to spare. We must stand, defend the freedom, live out the faith he showed. Make heaven crowded, walk the harder, righteous road. He was a martyr for the faith, now his power truly grows. A warrior for Christ, everyone now knows.

(Outro) So live boldly, rise to the challenge, speak the truth without fear. For Charlie Kirk, his legacy is clear. Well done, good and faithful servant, mission accomplished. God bless you, Charlie! We won't let you down.
