

Laura Lian Design Studio Grows Business at The Exchange

Ketone Partners, LLC (Ketone) has continued to welcome entrepreneurs and small businesses to their newly renovated building, The Exchange at 44 Vail (The Exchange), in downtown Arlington Heights. One of these businesses, Laura Lian Design Studio, moved into a private office in the coworking area of the building in August of this year.

As Laura Lian Williams and Dirk Vander Noot have continued to build and grow their business in and around the northwest suburbs, this convenient, central location allows them to easily meet with current and potential clients as well as host the professional groups in which they are involved.

“We love our new location, and the access to larger meeting rooms within the building,” said Dirk Vander Noot, Director of Operations at Laura Lian Design Studio. “As active members within the community, we have already had an opportunity to use meeting space for the Young Professional Group associated with the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce. We also recently hosted our first open house and welcomed about 100 people to our new office location.”

“It’s exciting to see this excellent location benefitting local business development right here in downtown Arlington Heights,” said Tessa Belmonte, Community Engagement Manager at The Exchange. “From graphic design to technology and hospitality, we have a vibrant community of professionals enjoying shared workspace in a modern, completely redeveloped building. There is no comparable coworking location in the northwest suburbs.”

The Exchange opened its newly renovated office and commercial space in April, 2022 and is home to Peralte-Clark, Bannockburn Chiropractic and Physical Therapy, Baldwin Financial Advisors, GreenKey Resources, and Ketone Partners, as well as multiple members in its coworking platform.
